PORTER ASHE.

THE STRUGGLE FOR PRETTY LITTLE ALMA STILL ON.

Mrs. Crocker and Mrs. Ashe Arrive
—Attempted Abduction—Ashe Arrested—The Habeas Corpus Case
Unfinished—Talk of a Divorce.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning there was a good deal of excitement about the St. Elmo, about little Alma Ashe, the child over whom so much fuss has been made during the past two days. It seems that the attorneys for Mrs. R. Porter Ashe feared Friday night that Ashe would make an attempt to run off with his infant daughter, notwithstanding the fact that he was under bonds to produce the child in court yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, on a writ of habeas corpus. They put Emil Harris, the detective, in charge of the case, and that gentleman thought it best to be on the safe side, so he employed several constables and other persons to look after the Ashe crowd. M. T. Bowler was employed and placed in the hall of the hotel, so that he could watch the room occupied by the nurse and the child. Everything went quietly until about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when Sydney Ashe appeared at the door with little Alma in his arms. The baby was dressed and a carriage was in waiting downstairs. Bowler attempted to take the child and said it should not leave the house. Porter Ashe came to the rescue, and succeeded in getting the nurse, baby and his brother down to the carriage. Several other detectives were in waiting down stairs, and as soon as the carriage started off, two of them jumped in a buggy and followed. A few minutes after Harris appeared on the scene, and found Porter Ashe walking up and down the sidewalk. "You need not come around here," said Ashe, "you will never see Alma in Los Angeles again." Harris did not feel at all uneasy, for he knew that he had two good men on the track of the child, with a warrant in case any one attempted to take her out of the county. Bowler was arrested immediately by Deputy-Sheriff Mitchell and taken to the Sheriff's office. He protested that he did not know he was doing anything wrong when he imperiously ordered, for he was acting under instructions and thought he was doing his duty. Ashe was consulted and consented to let him go, as he did not wish to prosecute. Shortly after this Ashe was arrested by Officer Del Valle and taken before Justice Austin for carrying a concealed weapon. He pleaded not guilty and the case was set for Monday, at 10 o'clock a.m. All kinds of rumors were flying around town by this time. One was to the effect that Ashe had made way with his child, and had taken her on board a steam launch, which was in waiting at Wilmington, but before the officers had time to turn around, the carriage, containing the child, nurse and Sydney Ashe, drove up to the hotel and the party alighted. Harris is confident that if he had not been for his men, who followed the carriage to Washington Gardens and handed them off at that place, they would have succeeded in making away with the child. He bases his belief on the fact that the child was taken out much earlier than usual, and that the nurse's clothes and the child's were in the carriage.

THE HABEAS CORPUS.

At 2 o'clock Judge Gardiner's courtroom was crowded with curious individuals, who were anxious to see what disposition would be made of little Alma A. Ashe, whose abduction by her father was noted in The Times of yesterday. A few minutes after 2 o'clock R. Porter Ashe walked into the courtroom, with Alma in his arms. Closely following in his footsteps came the nurse, Mrs. E. B. Crocker, the grandmother, Mrs. R. Porter Ashe and several other ladies. Hon. R. F. del Valle, Reel Terry and Dameron & Shaw appeared as counsel for Ashe, and S. M. Wilson and T. B. Bishop, of San Francisco; Judge Brunson, Graves & O'Melveny, Henry T. Gage and Max Lowenthal appeared for the petitioners and Mrs. Crocker. Mrs. Crocker and her daughter sat just back of Ashe, who held the child. The little thing was busily engaged in munching candy when its mother and grandmother entered, but as soon as it got sight of them it became very uneasy, and was not satisfied until it was allowed to go to its grandmother. Judge Brunson stated, as soon as the court was opened, that the respondents had just filed their answer to Mrs. Bender's petition for the possession of the child, and he and his associates had not had time to thoroughly examine it, and, as they had brought out some new facts, he asked that the hearing of the writ be continued until 4 o'clock. He also asked that the child be given into the custody of its mother. To this the attorneys for Ashe objected, and quite a lengthy argument was entered into. Mr. Dameron, counsel for Ashe, stated that the child should be left in the custody of the Sheriff until the petition could be heard. "We have reason," said he, "to believe they are trying to spirit the child away."

Gage, counsel for Mrs. Ashe: "These parties have already made one attempt to spirit the child away from us."

Del Valle, for Ashe: "We know that the petitioners, or some one, had detectives and constables about the St. Elmo, where the child was domiciled last night, and we believe they intended to steal the child away. We are tired of having these people howling about the building."

Judge Brunson claimed that the bond given by Ashe was not valid from the time when the child was produced in court, and, for that reason, he thought the child should be given to the mother until 4 o'clock. The court thought the child should be left in the custody of the Sheriff until the petition was disposed of, and it was so ordered. At this stage of the proceedings the court took a recess until 3:30 o'clock p.m.

When the court convened at 3:30 p.m., counsel for the petitioners asked that all persons, except those who were immediately interested in the case, be excluded from the room. The other side consented, and the room was cleared of all except witnesses and reporters of the daily papers. The answer to the petition was read. It sets forth, in substance, that Ashe arrived in the city on the 29th inst., and found his daughter in the custody of a stranger, and he took possession of her, for the reason that he believed as his father he should have that right. He had no reason to believe that his wife was about to begin proceedings in divorce. A petition from the mother, Mrs. R. Porter Ashe, asking that her name be substituted for Mrs. Bender, was read. It stated that she and her husband had been living separate for the past six months, and she asked that she might have the custody of the child. Counsel for Ashe objected to these proceedings, and asked the Court to refuse the petitioner to file a second petition until after the one in Mrs. Bender's name be disposed of. Seeing that this motion was not looked on with favor by the Court, they asked for further time. This seemed to be what counsel for the petitioners wanted, and they instantly consented.

The Court: Can you gentlemen agree as to the custody of the child until this matter is called up?

After some squabbling, it was agreed that the child should be left in the custody of the Sheriff, and that he should allow both parents to visit it. The attorneys suggested that the Sheriff take the child to Mrs. Crocker's residence, on Third street, but Ashe's attorneys objected on the grounds that the father could not visit it there, and the Court thought a hotel the proper place to take the child, and they finally concluded to take it to the Nadeau House, where both Ashe and Mrs. Ashe could see it. ROOMS 8 & 9 WILSON BLOCK, 24 W. FIRST STREET.

Hearing of the case was then continued until 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning. Just before the court adjourned Mrs. Kays stated to the court that he had been greatly bothered by police officers and detectives at the St. Elmo, and he did not want to have the same trouble again. Counsel for Ashe protested that they had no detectives in their employ, and did not propose to have. All they wanted was to know that the child would be in court Wednesday morning. Ashe became excited once or twice during the examination, and when they talked of taking the child to Mrs. Crocker's he jumped to his feet and started in to make a speech to the court, but his attorneys pulled him down, and a session was nipped in the bud.

Last evening Mrs. Ashe was seen at her rooms in the Nadeau by a TIMES representative. "Yes," said the young mother, choking a great sob back, "I have my darling with me. I don't know what I should do without her. I wish you to contradict in The Times a false statement which appeared in the Express this evening, to the effect that we took lunch with Mr. Ashe today. I passed him on the stairs when we went to the St. Elmo to see my child, but we had no conversation. In fact we had no time, even if I had desired to do such a foolish thing, for our train did not get here until 1:10 p.m., and at 15 minutes of 2 o'clock we were in the courthouse."

"Do you think Ashe attempted to get away with your grand-daughter this morning?" asked the reporter of Mrs. Crocker. "I do not know," replied the lady. "I have heard all kinds of reports since we arrived, and I am so excited that I can hardly think. You know we left San Francisco at 9:30 last night, and I have not had much sleep on account of the excitement." "What about the divorce matter which was so freely talked of by counsel today?" asked the reporter. "Mrs. Crocker: 'That is something that we do not care to talk about, but—'" "Mrs. Ashe: 'Now, mamma, you know that we must not say anything,' and the reporter could not get anything out of them on that point."

"It is said on the streets that Mr. Ashe has gone to Sacramento to secure witnesses to be present here on Wednesday."

Mrs. Crocker: "There are a great many low people who may talk, but I do not fear them. My daughter is in the right and I am sure the people of Los Angeles are with her."

"What does the girl who was with Alma this morning when it was alleged Mr. Ashe attempted to abduct her say?" Does she think it was an attempt at abduction?" asked the reporter.

Mrs. Crocker: "No, she does not, or did not seem to think so when I talked to her about it."

Mrs. Ashe: "But he would if he had a chance."

"Rumor says that he had a steam launch at Wilmington and was going to take the child to sea," remarked the reporter.

Both ladies: "Oh, my, how could he do such a thing?"

At a late hour last night all was quiet about the Nadeau House. Sheriff Kays was on duty until about 10 o'clock, when he became satisfied that there would be no danger until today when the child is taken out for a drive. He left Deputy Sheriff T. D. Anderson in charge, with instructions to keep the child in the hotel all night, at all hazards. The Sheriff is thoroughly prepared to resist any attempt that may be made to abduct the child.

STORY OF THE BUILDING OF THE SPARKLING CHAMPAGNE COMPANY

How He Did Not Spend $1000 of the Stockholders' Coin, and Is Gladly Contradicted by Several Witnesses.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning "Dr." G. T. Griffin sat in Judge Austin's court complacently reading a Montreal Star to learn how his old friends of that deserted village were surviving his departure therefrom. His elegant French mustaches were shaved to a nicely, his kid gloves shone conspicuously, on the table rested his silk hat with its broad mourning band and in the seat of his coat was a pretty poy. He sat the stand and proceeded with his recital of the fortunes and misfortunes of the S. C. M. Co. in the City of Angels. According to his testimony the papers have one well in the matter, but there seems to be some confusion in the evidence of the stock and some other witnesses. The doctor said substantially: On the day of incorporation there were only five stockholders, he proceeded to the office of the Clerk and had the articles of incorporation, after coming in the usual way. My wife came just prior to the adoption of the bylaws and she took five shares. She was very much opposed to the scheme from the first, for several reasons. My wife's father was a confirmed drunkard and lost a large sum of money. My wife refused to allow me to attend the banquet, but I told her it was a good thing. I intended to live here. My suddenly influence over her caused her to leave me to invest. Then when the unknown of THE TIMES came out she wanted to withdraw. We went to THE TIMES office to explain the item that had appeared in the paper. It was before the article appeared that she took stock.

It was a week ago last Friday that my wife started to leave me for the reasons that have stated. She said I could either go out or she would leave me, and I told her she could go for the present. Mr. Noll came to me to discount some shares. While we were ascertaining if the shares were good I gave him a check for $100, and these notes were to go on his shares. After that he came in and wanted to draw out. I called in Col. Edgerton and told Noll that he was a stockholder and paid Noll. Mr. Noll became very unkind and I called in Frank Cherry and told him that I was money. These notes were to be sent to him by me for collection, and were distributed by me. He paid me for discounting them.

I think I owe Dr. Pittman about $5 or $6. I was for painting the outside of the building. I don't know whether I had a contract with him or not. It could not have exceeded $15 at the most. It was between $10 and $15 that he wanted to charge for painting the front of the building. All the men were paid, except Mr. Rivers, and the others would have been paid if the stockholders had only paid. In their subscriptions, but they got scared by the newspaper articles, and did not pay in their money. The lots were to be paid for in cash and stock, on installments. We drew up the papers for the transfer and left everything for the notary. But we were waiting for three men who were going to put in $1500. A gentleman went to San Francisco to see about it, but these men and some others he heard out by the articles which were published. There has been no contract signed for the lot. We had three notes for $100 each drawn, and everything was left with the notary.

I think there has been $1100 paid in. The offer was to be paid for in stock. The lot was not paid for. The balance has been used in paying advertising bills, the men's wages, etc. I don't know just how much has been paid for advertising. I think $700 or $800. I paid THE TIMES $112, the Herald $305, the Express $100 to $200, some to the Tribune, the San Francisco papers, and to other papers here. It is not a fact that all the money paid in was by men working for us. Mr. White was to be our teamster. We did not have any team and did not tell Mr. White that we had. We were looking at a team, but the price was too high, so we did not buy it. Mr. McGrath never worked for the company.

Mr. Johnson took one share, to be paid out of his wages. Mr. Church was in the employ of the company for one week. He came to me then and wanted to draw out and said he could get another man to take his place. He went to find the man and I did not see him again. Mr. Holden came in and said Mr. Church was not a legal one because the company was not a legal one. I pointed him to our articles on the wall and he said that was satisfactory. Mr. Church did not wait till pay-day. Our pay-day was every two weeks, and he had not worked that long. [Contract here introduced, showing that Church was to begin work and draw salary from March 21, 1887.] The reason why he did not go to work sooner was because the man who was to furnish the engine was frightened by the articles in the papers. I know they were so scared because they told me, and THE TIMES is the only paper that has printed articles against us. Every employee must give fifteen days' notice before quitting the service of the company. This was done because it takes a man that long to understand the machinery and the working of things, and by leaving suddenly he would cripple the company. The contract says that he should go to work on March 21st, but the engine had not come, and he had not been at work that long. His pay was not due when he gave notice that he wanted to leave. Mr. McGrath was not to be secretary of the company. He is a retired wine merchant. He could not fill any position. He is infirm. He can hardly write or hear.

Edgerton recalled: I drew up a contract, or deed, or both, for the purchase of the lots for the company. I don't remember the terms of the contract. I passed the papers over to Dr. Griffin and he said to me, "I think they were signed. I am not sure about it. I don't know by whom they were signed. Two hundred dollars was to be paid down, some in installments, and some in stock at option. The cash was to be stock of the company." [Counsel for defendant here introduced a contract signed by Church, dated April 19th, in which Church agrees to give fifteen days' notice before leaving the service of the company.]

George A. Johnson sworn: I went into the employ of the Sparkling Champagne Company April 7th. I was to be assistant manager at the wine factory in the Nadeau Hotel. I don't know where it was made. About two weeks after I helped to make some of the wine. I know about Dr. Griffin's taking wine to Dr. Cohn's office. The wine (100 bottles) was brought in a wagon to the office. Dr. Griffin took one of these 100 bottles out of a box, and carried it to Dr. Cohn's office. It had no label on it at that time. He would not tell one bottle from another, at least I could not, as all were alike. I subscribed for one share of stock. I have been to the depot to get machinery. I had a bill of lading for a bottling table, a bottle-washer and some other things. Part of it came from New Orleans, part from Boston. Some of the machinery is now in Naud's warehouse; some is now on the road here. Cross-examined: This is the notice received from the railroad company as to machinery on the road. They told me it was for the champagne company. [Stricken out.]

Redirect: I have been paid for my services. Every one else has, so far as I know. Re-cross: They have told me that they

Mrs. W. R. Pittman sworn on behalf of The People: I am the wife of Mr. Pittman. [A long discussion here ensued between counsel as to the admission of evidence from Mrs. Pittman, and it was not allowed.] Mr. Pittman recalled: There was a contract on the building as it was the heavy party, not up. Then when the change was made there was no contract. I painted it inside and out, and charged by the yard. My wife furnished the paint. There were 380 yards. The whole bill, including cleaning for painting, etc., amounted to $89.

Cross-examination: I painted the casings and doors on the inside. It is not customary to clean off whitewash when he tells me to do it and says he will pay for it. Robert Farrell sworn: Said he was collector for the Los Angeles Herald; and, in answer to a question, said that not a cent had ever been paid to the Herald for advertising on account of the Dry Sparkling Champagne Company.

Mr. Williams: You are mistaken about that. The witness: No, I am not mistaken. There never has been a cent paid on account of the Champagne Company. Cross-examined: [To Mr. Williams:] The bill you paid was for the Smoke Ball Company, except $43 and some cents, which was on the doctor's personal account. Dr. Griffin: I told you to charge it to me personally, because the paper did not know the Dry Sparkling Champagne Company. Nathan Cole recalled: I know when the 102 bottles of wine were made that were taken to Dr. Griffin's office. It was carbonated at H. W. Stoll's soda works. The wine from which the champagne was made was brought at G. Tononi's winery, on Alameda street.

Robert Farrell, recalled by the defense: There was a bill at the office of the Herald for advertising Sparkling Champagne charged to Dr. Griffin, for the company, of $49.70. Not a cent has ever been paid on it. No, sir, that is not a balance on the bill of Champagne Company. It is all the bill they ever had. Cross-examined: I took the Dry Sparkling Champagne bill to Dr. Griffin over a week ago. He told me it would be paid the next Saturday. I called Saturday and he told me to return in the evening. I went again on Monday, and he said he was going to have an allotment of shares on Tuesday, and then would pay the bill. I did not see him afterwards.

Harry Chandler testified that he was collector for the Times-Mirror Publishing Company. To my knowledge there has been nothing paid to the company on account of the Champagne Company. All that the doctor has paid has been on account of the Carbolic Smoke Ball Company. I collect all the bills. He owes $41.90 to the Times-Mirror Company for advertising the Sparkling Champagne Company, for which bill has been brought.

W. L. Price, book-keeper for the Los Angeles Herald, said: Not a 5-cent piece of that bill of $236.55 was for the Sparkling Champagne Company. You yourself [to Williams] told me not to include any of the Champagne in it. One hundred and eighty-eight dollars and thirty-five cents of it is for the Carbolic Smoke Ball Company, and $45.20 was Dr. Griffin's private account. No, sir, it was not Champagne money. It was for other items; business chances, money to loan, etc.

J. M. Austin said he was secretary of an collector for the Tribune Publishing Company. I think Dr. Griffin has paid $24.25 on account of the Dry Sparkling Champagne Company. H. F. Hastings, book-keeper of the Evening Express, sworn: To my knowledge, Dr. Griffin has not paid anything to the Express on account of the Dry Sparkling Champagne Company. The books do not show that he has paid anything, and if he had they would show it.

George Sutter sworn: Said that 16 to 18 cents a yard was a reasonable price for painting two coats. Dr. Griffin asked to be put on the stand to correct a statement made yesterday, that he owed the Herald $205 and THE TIMES $113 for advertising the Champagne Company. "The Herald man came to me and told me to bring in their accounts. He did, and I gave the money to Judge Williams to pay the bill, and I thought it (the bill) was for the Champagne Company."

Cross-examined: I explain my testimony as to these bills as having said that. The conversation I had with Farrell occurred afterward. H. Z. Osborne said: I recollect about what the bill of the Dry Sparkling Champagne Company is. It is about $25. I have a note of Mr. Starr, of Pasadena, as security. The doctor owes us about $140 on account of the Carbolic Smoke Ball Company. He came to me about these bills Saturday afternoon, and wanted me to discount this Starr note for $300. I told him I knew nothing about the maker of the note, and that I would take it and find out about it. I have not seen the doctor since. He met Mr. Cleveland on the street and gave him $80 on account of the Smoke Ball Company. It was after this that he came to us about the bills and brought the note. I don't know whether it is security or not. I intend to hang on to it till the bill is paid. The note was indorsed by the doctor.

Cross-examined: He brought the note. I said I would find out if it was good and for him to come back and see about it. He never came and the matter stands that way. [The note here put in evidence. It is a note made to J. H. Griffin, president Dry Sparkling Champagne Manufacturing Company, signed by Charles Starr, Starr Hotel, Pasadena, and indorsed by Griffin as president, etc. Defendant admits it was given for stock.] This note was tendered in payment of all Dr. Griffin owed us about $180. It was intended to pay all these bills, if I had accepted it. As it is the only security I have, I am going to hang on to it. The Smoke Ball bill has been assumed by Mr. Spinner.

F. L. Morrill said that his job-printing office had done some printing for the Dry Sparkling Champagne Company, about $100, of which $70 had been paid. It is probably less than $100. The trial was here adjourned to Monday next, at 2 o'clock p.m.

A PROPOSED FACTORY.

Southern California has a prospect for obtaining the location of a very important enterprise in the shape of a mammoth mill factory and rolling mill, and there is talk of some point in this county for the site. A gentleman now here, who has had an experience of some thirty years in this line, is introducing the project to the attention of our solid and enterprising citizens. This gentleman is G. P. Clapp, who for the past five years has been in Oakland, Prior to that he was superintendent of a large factory in Montreal for fifteen years. Mr. Clapp has received considerable encouragement to locate at other points in the way of free rents for land-sites and water powers, and offers to sell stock, but he is more favorably inclined to this section if he can get sufficient encouragement. He has already been offered a site at Ballona, and some large offers to take stock. The buildings which would be necessary would be built of wood and iron, as follows: Furnace building, 80x100 feet; rolling mill, 70x100 feet; storehouse, 50x100 feet; grinding mill, 30x50 feet; office-house, 30x30 feet; sheds, 30x50 feet, making a superb site of 24,000 feet. The capacity would be 500 tons per day, employing 100 men, with a pay-roll of $5000 per month. The proposed capital is $200,000, and the plant would cost some $125,000. All kinds of nails, spikes and bolts would be manufactured, and would have a wide field for sale in this portion of the country.

Barbark. Owing to the large sales and great demand, the prices of lots in Barbark will soon be advanced again, as the buildings, improvements and location justifies double the present prices, which are still lower than any surrounding towns of not half the advantages or importance as a suburban foothill home to Los Angeles. Its commanding view on the through line of railroad, only fifteen minutes ride, is second to none in Southern California.

The Books Will Soon Close. Subscribe to a lot in South Los Angeles. Half-acre lots, with improvements, at $100 per lot. Monthly payments of $10. No interest. Southern California Land Company, 244 North Main street, Baker block.

Price, $100 to $150 Per Acre. Gardens has the land. The land speaks for itself. Go and see it. Finest garden and fruit land in Los Angeles county. Pomeroy & Gates, 16 Court street.

SAN DIEGO has a new weekly German paper.

SCHNAEBELES is at liberty again. Long live Schnaebeles!

SAN LUIS OBISPO's District Agricultural Society is a fixed institution.

The discovery of artesian water at The Willows, this county, has given a new impetus to that section.

As that reliable philosopher, Josh Billings, has observed: "A reekord is a mitey onhandy thing to hev around."

"They are to live apart and both to do as they please" is the conclusion of a Philadelphia family row. An exchange calls it "divorce on the European plan."

W. H. MILLS, the man who ran the State Immigration Society on Northern California, perpetrates a little lie over the land-office business he did the past month.

It took 300 years for China to make up her mind to cede Macao to Portugal, but the deed has been done. It wouldn't do to dicker that way in Los Angeles real estate.

SANTA CRUZ owns her own electric-light works, and Alameda is talking of buying the system in operation there. It is a wise city which early acquires and permanently retains its own public works.

It is said that instruments of torture resembling the rack and thumb-screw have been discovered among the effects of Anarchists raided in Chicago. With these supplementing their dynamite bombs, it is manifest how the plotters are progressing backward into the dark ages.

THE Herald, in a long, biased, labored and illogical editorial, champions Boyce and his libel suit against THE TIMES. It is something that the editor of that paper cannot afford to do; but let that pass. It's his own affair. The prime mistake made by the Herald and a few other papers in this matter lies in charging that we attack legitimate enterprises because this bad man Boyce is connected with them. We do nothing of the sort. We attack the man because of his own misdeeds, and if any enterprise or other person suffers by reason of the attack, it is simply a case of dog Tray. We are not in hostile pursuit of any good enterprise, but, if bad men are associated dishonestly with legitimate ventures, it is no sufficient reason for sparing the one for the purpose of shielding the other. The Herald could understand if it would.

Mr. Boyce Publishes a "Card."

Being at bay, with THE TIMES camping on his devious trail, "Mr. Boyce" has published a card to the public. It is a very plausible card—very plausible, indeed. It is oily and cunning, as becomes its author. But it will deceive nobody who knows this man and his consummate hypocrisy, insidious schemes and deceptive methods.

It may deceive, for the time being, that portion of the community for whom it is secretly intended—the strangers—for it is notorious that this man always operates on raw material—upon strangers ignorant of his smirched character and crooked career.

Like many another pretender and confidence operator brought to bay, "Smoothy" cunningly asks for "a suspension of judgment" in his case—until he can produce the "character" which he professes to have in his possession. He wants time to get it together, so to speak. He promises to make an effort towards accomplishing the herculean task of proving to the community that he is not "a trickster and a polished scoundrel," to quote again the wording of his legal complaint. He professes his ability to succeed in this effort; but it is impossible; the age of miracles is past. He asserts that he has documents and witnesses to disprove the charges against his character, but he will find to his sorrow, not to his satisfaction, that what is in a man's life "is sure to come out," that "doctored" documents will not save him, and that nothing can prevent him, sooner or later, from "becoming known through and through" by the community in which he lives. This is precisely what Mr. Boyce does not want, notwithstanding his plausible and cunning attempt to give the opposite impression.

With matchless and monumental assurance he dares assert that he "never knowingly wronged a man, woman or child out of a dollar or a just right," yet instances are many, and some of them very recent, where he has been accused of the crime of embezzlement or other forms of misappropriation, and has tacitly acknowledged the truth of the charge by making restitution of his dishonestly-gotten gains upon demand, under fear of criminal prosecution.

The "forbearance and self-control" which he plausibly tells the public he has shown "under great and repeated provocations," sprang not from the consciousness of rectitude, but from a cowardly fear of exposure—an ever-present and conscience-haunting danger which disturbs his thoughts by day, and would make uneasy his sleep by night, if he were not the coarse and vulgar animal he is, with whom physical gratification is shamelessly placed before honor, duty and self-abnegation.

With his customary cunning he exerts himself to impress his readers with the false idea that the charges against him are now first made, and that the editor of THE TIMES originated them! This is assurance unspeakable. The main charges against this smooth impostor are based upon his career covering a period of twenty years, more or less—a career never straight and open, but always devious and dark.

"As I deal with this subject, so may the public deal with me," says Boyce, in a lofty but incoherent style. The public will not deal with Mr. Boyce in a way to suit him, for the facts will not warrant it. And the facts must now, at last, come out.

THE rather laughable unanimity of the Herald, Tribune and Express with reference to H. H. Boyce's libel suit against this paper is no mystery to the numerous people who have a general idea of the various principles upon which the papers of this city are run.

The public has perhaps noted that all three of our above-named able contemporaries have been running huge advertisements—from half a page to a full page—of Boyce's latest venture, "Gladstone." These ads. bring in a handsome revenue, if the columns of those papers are as valuable as those of THE TIMES. Simply for information, we rise to inquire: Did you, gentle reader, ever know the Herald, the Tribune or the Express to print one line against any man who was "a big advertiser" with them? Just think it over. Did you ever know either of them to go after and expose any scoundrel who stood fairly well in money, friends or influence, no matter how badly he was swindling the public? Ponder on that, also. If our contemporaries wish to try to manufacture public sentiment against THE TIMES in this case they are welcome to their unnamable job. They will come out of it just as they did out of their championship of certain other odious persons at various times. The clean, cold truth is something they will never be able to get away with. Truth is a "stayer," while gammon falls down by the wayside.

A YOUNG gentleman connected with the press of this city furnishes to the Overland Monthly a comprehensive and readable sketch of Ballona harbor, which we reproduce elsewhere. While the information here embodied is not particularly new to those who have kept the run of events in this section, still a logical canvass of any matter of public improvement is always of interest. The writer falls into a very grave error, however, when he flippantly condemns San Pedro harbor, and pronounces the government works there, which have cost three-quarters of a million of dollars, a failure. Far from it! The breakwaters at San Pedro have accomplished a great deal for the port, and promise better things hereafter, if properly extended. It is not wise to condemn either the bridge or the harbor that carries one over, and San Pedro has been the best port that Los Angeles ever had. Ballona may be as good some day, but it is not yet.

THERE are some things which intelligent people scarcely need to be reminded of. One is that a respectable and responsible newspaper dare not and would not make specific charges of infamy against a man without feeling sure of its ability to prove those charges in court. Another is that it is just as easy for a scoundrel as for an honest man to write or utter denials, the plausibility of which depend upon the ability of the denier. To charge without proof is dangerous and criminal; to deny is as easy as the breath it costs, and as safe. The old proof is what tells in the end, and that is what THE TIMES will give to a discriminating public as soon as called upon—may be sooner.

THE connection was made last night between the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Valley Railroad and the San Bernardino and Los Angeles Railroad, and now the great Santa Fé system has its own line from Kansas City plump into Los Angeles. It will be some little time before the new line is operated, but the welcome day is not far off.

AMUSEMENTS.

CLOSE OF FREDERICK WARDE'S EXAGGERATION.—The opera-house was filled with the largest audience of the week to witness the repetition of Shakespeare's Richard III (revised version). The audience was delighted with the masterly presentation of the character, and insisted on recalling the tragedian after the final fall of the curtain. Mr. Warde was then presented with an immense floral emblem, and was moved to thank the public for their manifestations of approval, expressing, too, his desire to visit Los Angeles on his next circuit, all of which was loudly applauded.

Of Mr. Warde's merits as an actor it is easy to speak with fuller assurance after having seen him in each of his four characters this week. It is true of his repertory has not been varied to any considerable extent. The heroes of the three plays of classic times—"Virginia," "Galba" and "Damon," although differing in temper and the affections of the public, perhaps, of which he is the only actor of the "legitimate" on the American stage who will be recognized as a successor to the place today occupied by Edwin Booth.

Mr. Booth's successor in the public eye, perhaps, for Booth exerts a wonderful influence on account of his individual personality, quite apart from his merits as an actor. The public knows every word of his career, and has sympathized in his misfortunes and recognizes that he is in his old age a disappointed man. For these reasons he receives honor and respect such as another man would have to obtain in later years. But as an actor Booth has no longer the incentives to ambition, and has plainly shown of late that he desires no more conquests. A man like Frederick Warde has then a splendid field before him; he has had a fine apprenticeship in the best of dramatic schools; experience has been his teacher; he knows the traditions of the stage, and possesses the requisites of a great actor, and his character could not have been so successfully made did he not possess introspective powers of a high order.

His career will be watched with interest, and his next visit to Los Angeles he may be fortunate to arrive at a time when the public is not suffering from a surfeit of amusements.

BAIRD'S MINSTRELS.—This minstrel company will arrive here next week and will open at the opera-house on Wednesday. They are twenty-eight in number, mostly stars.

ASHORE ON BLOCK ISLAND.—The ship May Cushing, from New York for Hong Kong with 50,000 cases of oil and 230 tons of ballast, went ashore on the west side of Block Island this morning. Heavy seas surround the vessel and she is pounding and leaking.

NEWPORT, April 30.—The revenue cutter Dexter and a wrecking schooner left Island for Newport, Mass., this morning.

BLOCK ISLAND, April 30.—On board the Cushing were the captain, two mates, a purser, steward, cook, eighteen seamen and the captain's wife and daughter. The captain's family were taken off by a lifeboat. It is feared the vessel will prove a total loss. She is valued at $150,000.

San Luis Obispo Jottings.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, April 30.—A meeting of citizens was held this afternoon to complete the organization of a District Agricultural Society. The following names were selected to be submitted to the Governor for appointment as directors: P. W. Murphy, E. W. Steele, J. H. Orcutt, J. D. Fowler, L. M. Warden, A. Tognazzini, George Vandenberg. The secretary was instructed to inform the Governor of the action taken.

Two adventurers, J. C. Hastie and Henry Day, arrived in this town about a week ago. They represented themselves as real-estate dealers from San Diego, and being of pleasing address, worked the town quite successfully. Yesterday they quietly stole away, leaving numerous debts behind.

A Town Destroyed.

PORTLAND (Or.), April 30.—A dispatch from Goldendale, Wash., states that the little town of Bickleton, forty-five miles northeast of that place, was entirely destroyed by fire last night, except a church, blacksmith shop and butcher shop. The loss is about $25,000. The only insurance was $3000 carried by Bickie & Flower, who had a general merchandise store.

Editor Bennett's Travels.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—Advises by the steamer Oceania, which arrived from China and Japan this morning, state that James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of the New York Herald, arrived outside Bangkok by March 14th, in his steam yacht, Naumou. After a short trip up the river, he left on the 17th ult. for Java, en route for Europe.

By Telegram to The Times.

BAKERSFIELD, April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] About three weeks ago a man, who stated that he was hunting for land, made his appearance near Poso creek, at the foot of the Sierras. His actions were suspicious and he was closely watched. Many persons living near the creek became confident that the stranger was none other than Peter Olsen, who murdered Mrs. Lyons in Napa, February 29th. Aleck and Jefferson Carver, brothers, procured a warrant for Olsen's arrest. They invited him to breakfast at their house, and saw that the description of him which they had tallied with the stranger. The two brothers decided to attempt Olsen's arrest at the cabin where he slept. Accordingly, shortly before noon on Friday, in company with R. Bonner, they arrived at the cabin. They were armed with shotguns and pistols. Olsen was found clearing ground for a garden. Aleck Carver called on him to throw up his hands, as he had a warrant for his arrest. The three men then covered Olsen with their weapons. The latter seized his axe and endeavored to hurl it at Jefferson Carver, whereupon the brothers both fired. Olsen received both charges in the neck and breast, and fell to the ground and expired in a few minutes. His body was brought here last night and fully identified.

Olsen had cut the name of "M. H. Seibert" on a tree near his cabin and had written on the cabin door, "Homestead of Michael H. Seibert." People from Napa will arrive tomorrow morning to identify him.

THE TRAIN ROBBERS.

The Gang at Tucson, but Not Yet Arrested.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] The latest information concerning the Papago train-robbers is that a man named Cook has been found in Tucson who claims to know all the men implicated in the robbery. He states that a short time ago he was asked to conspire with these men to rob a train, but refused, and that the plan then proposed was precisely like that carried out. Cook furnished the officers with the names and a full description of all five desperadoes, and stated that they were all in concealment in Tucson. The officers refuse to divulge the names, but say that the men are located and cannot possibly escape. Every exit in Tucson is closely guarded. The leader of the robbers is named Swan.

GOV. TORRES WILL CO-OPERATE.

TUCSON (Ariz.), April 30.—Gov. Torres, of Sonora, has informed the authorities here that he will co-operate with our civil officers in hunting the robbers down in case they enter Mexican territory.

MANY NEW SETTLERS.

Increased Inquiry for California Lands During April.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] The land office of the Central Pacific road, under the direction of W. H. Mills, has done a more satisfactory business during the month about closing than in any preceding month for two years. The greater number of the sales during April were of California lands, with a few sales in Nevada. Eastern people are among the purchasers, and home seekers and many eastern people are among the inquirers. Eastern people are now inspecting various portions of Upper California, and buying plats, pamphlets, etc. An encouraging feature is the large proportion of eastern people of some means who are inspecting, not only railroad, but other lands, with a view to purchasing.

DRUGGISTS' LICENSES.

Their Legality to Be Tested in the Courts.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] A meeting of the Board of Trade was held yesterday to take action on the question of commercial travelers' licenses in the State of Nevada. A communication was read from the Sacramento Board of Trade in which it was stated: "Our members are under the impression that the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States declares unconstitutional the imposing in one State of a tax upon citizens of another for soliciting trade and patronage. At any rate they think that the sums exacted by Nevada officials from travelers for our business houses are illegal, exorbitant and extortionate, and that they are not warranted by any law, and can be honestly and legally avoided."

After the reading of the letter a discussion ensued, and it was finally agreed that a test case was the only solution of the difficulty. President Sanderson will shortly call a meeting of all San Francisco merchants who pay license for their travelers in Nevada, as well as all members of the Board of Trade, whether they do business in that State or not. Action will be then taken in cooperation with the Sacramento Board.

Artesian Water at Willows.

WILLOWS, April 30.—The artesian well on Rideout ranch, a few miles south of Willows, is a complete success. It has reached a depth of 571 feet. Water flows twelve feet above the ground, and at the rate of five gallons per minute. The people are considerably excited over the new discovery. Many of the farmers will go to work and sink wells, as a more convenient and satisfactory plan.

Short in His Accounts.

SACRAMENTO, April 30.—John T. Stafford, a young man of this city, resigned his position as clerk of the water works. The cause of his resignation is said to be over $3000, and it is alleged that he is over $3000 behind in his accounts for this month. He has, however, it is said, made good the deficit.

Quarantine to Be Removed.

SACRAMENTO, April 30.—No new cases of smallpox having appeared in Los Angeles for the past two weeks, the State Board of Health will tomorrow discontinue all inspectors along the railway lines and the smallpox quarantine will be removed.

No Sentiment About It.

CHICAGO, April 30.—In connection with the attempts of Californians to save the Hartford, dissonance from California says: "Secretary Whitney says that he does not consider the subject in his business and not in its sentimental bearings. That is just the way in which San Francisco people are considering it. If the Hartford was laying in any other navy-yard there would be no delegation here from San Francisco begging a few leaves of life for the old hulk. It makes a heap of difference where the $350,000 or $400,000 required to repair her is to be spent."

Bernhardt Disgusted with Chicago. CHICAGO, April 30.—Sarah Bernhardt's engagement in Chicago has not been a financial success, and she is quoted in an afternoon paper as being greatly disappointed. She said: "Chicago has deceived me. I thought her audiences like those of New York. They told me so, but it is not so." Miss Bernhardt proceeds from here to San Francisco.

Admiral Boggs Dying. NEW BRUNSWICK, April 30.—Rear Admiral Charles S. Boggs is said to be dying.

THE SEASON'S SPORTS.

Events on Eastern and Western Race Tracks—A Match Arranged Between Majolica and Arab—Base-ball.

By Telegram to The Times.

SANTA ROSA, April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] A twenty-five-mile horse race took place this afternoon between Anderson and Carillo. The lead was kept by Carillo until the end of the twenty-first mile when Anderson forged ahead and remained so till the end, coming out winner by ninety yards. Time, 1:10. The race was witnessed by 500 people.

MAJOLICA AND ARAB.

NEW YORK, April 30.—J. H. Temple, with W. H. Crawford, met Nathan Strauss yesterday and entered into an agreement to trot Strauss's bay gelding, Majolica, whose record is 2:15, against the California bay gelding, Arab, whose record is 2:17½; the match to be for $3000, in addition to the added money that may be received from the association owning the track where the race takes place. The details as to date and place are yet to be arranged, but an effort will be made to have the race trotted over the track of the New York Driving Club, some time in June.

RACES AT DIXON.

DIXON, April 30.—There was a large attendance and several interesting contests at the spring meeting of the Dixon Driving Park Association today.

The mile and repeat race was won by D. Douglas. Time, 1:32.
The trotting race was won by Eph, owned by Bud Harland. Time, 3 minutes.
The match race for one mile between D. Douglas and Centauri, was won by D. Douglas. Time, 1:51.

THE MEMPHIS MEETING.

MEMPHIS (Tenn.), April 30.—This was the sixth and last day of the spring meeting of the Memphis Jockey Club. The weather was threatening, and attendance fair.

All ages, half-mile heats—First heat: Hindoo Rose won, Little Minnie second, Eva K. third. Time, 59½. Second heat: Eva K. won, Little Minnie second, Hindoo Rose third. Time, 51½. Third heat: Hindoo Rose won, Eva K. second. Time, 51½. Maiden 3-year-olds, three-quarters of a mile—Leland won, False note second, Berta C. third. Time, 1:10.
Two-year-olds, half a mile—Aniban won, Ivanhoe second, Barrister third. Time, 52.
All ages, one and a sixteenth miles—Spaulding won, St. Valentine second, Jim Nave third. Time, 1:32.
Steeplechase over the short course, for all ages—Aurelian won, Tennessee second, Ascoli third. Time, 3:53½.

BASE-BALL.

LOUISVILLE, April 30.—Louisville, 9; Cincinnati, 0. The Cincinnati failed to arrive on the ground, being delayed by a railroad accident, and the umpire gave the game to Louisville.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 30.—Indianapolis, 12; Detroit, 14.
BALTIMORE, April 30.—Baltimore, 21; Metropolitan, 8.
PITTSBURGH, April 30.—Chicago, 2; Pittsburgh, 6.
WASHINGTON, April 30.—Boston, 6; Washington, 4.

SAN JUAN, April 30.—The first game of the Central Base-ball League was played this afternoon. San Juan, 10; Watsonville, 9.
ST. LOUIS, April 30.—Cleveland 11, St. Louis 8.
PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—Athletic 10, Brooklyn 9.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—The greatest event in the history of base-ball in this city took place today in the opening of the Philadelphia Base-ball Park. The new ground is believed to be the most complete and best appointed in the United States, and a sum of $100,000 has been expended in its embellishment.

DITCHED.

Serious Accident on the Northern Pacific Road.

CHICAGO, April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] The Times' Steele (Dak.) special says: The west-bound Pacific express on the Northern Pacific jumped the track today at about 1 o'clock, twelve miles out of this city, near Driscoll Station, and precipitated five out of its six cars into a ditch. The train was running on a heavy down-grade at the time, and the heat of the sun, which has been something unusual here at this season, had warped the rails. The engine and express car passed over in safety, but the five cars following left the track and turned upward in the ditch. Two of the coaches were loaded with two companies of the Seventh United States Cavalry, en route for Ft. Yates and Guilford. The other three cars were filled with emigrants and first-class passengers, mostly bound for the Pacific coast.

Following is a list of the killed and wounded: Killed—W. O. Breed, of Fairbault, Minn. He was accompanied by his family, en route for Washington Territory. He was standing on the platform talking to Charles Stanley, of this city, when the crash came, and in attempting to jump he was caught by an overturning coach and crushed to death. Stanley escaped injury by jumping off on the opposite side. Breed's family were not injured. The wounded are: C. H. Gray, Ellsworth Falls, Me., cut on arm and head; Miss Gertrude Hill, Bozeman, Mont., badly hurt internally; H. H. Sobell, superintendent Northern Pacific telegraph lines, leg badly smashed and doubts of his recovery; McCarbey, Second Cavalry, Ft. Yates, cut in shoulder and collar-bone; H. Scott, Seventh Cavalry, Ft. Buford, jaw broken; Albert Wolf, Seventh Cavalry, Ft. Yates, and John Kelly, Ft. Buford, injured internally, but not seriously. Only the dining and sleeping cars remained on the rails. It is surprising, under the circumstances, that a score of people were not killed.

The G. A. R. at Chico.

CHICO, April 30.—The Grand Army posts of Northern California have chosen Woodland as the place for the next reunion between the 15th of April and the 6th of May. L. W. Hillaker was elected president, and George Banks corresponding secretary, both of Woodland.

VACANT CHAIRS.

Three California Colleges Need Presidents.

An Army of Eastern Educators Seeking the Positions.

The Stanford University Likely Secure Gen. Walker.

Boss Buckley Shakes Off the Political Dust of San Francisco and Goes to Europe—Shocking Death of a Railway Employee at Albuquerque.

By Telegram to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—[Special.] Presidents are at present desired for the leading educational institutions on the coast: The University of California, Leland Stanford, Jr., University and the University of the Pacific. The ranks eastern men in educational work are being closely scanned in search of candidates for the vacant positions. There are many candidates for the places; candidates who are men of high standing and hold more lucrative positions, who are attracted to California by its bright prospects in educational field in common with all other lines of activity and progress. It is a general impression that Gen. F. A. Walker, head of the Massachusetts School of Technology, will be president of the Stanford Institution. No authoritative announcement can yet be made. Prof. Holden is a president of the University of California but he is only awaiting the completion of the Lick Observatory to be work there. It is the hope of the Regents to secure his successor before September 22nd next, when the regular academic year begins. It is an open secret that President D. C. Gilman, of Johns Hopkins University is desired. The names of Prof. Keith and Prof. Hilgard are also suggested for place. The loss of the University of the Pacific in Rev. D. C. Stratton was a great loss for Mills College. The trustees of University met yesterday and talked of the different candidates for the president. A dozen eastern men, all clergymen, are anxious for the position. Salary $3000, half that of the president of University of California. The trustees determined to secure a man under 50 years of age, but a decision in the matter was deferred for two weeks. As nearly all candidates occupy positions in eastern institutions, they make it conditional that their names be withheld until a decision is reached.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

Terrible Death of a Railway Employee at Albuquerque.

ALBUQUERQUE, April 30.—[Special.] Most distressing accident occurred in Albuquerque yards last night, where switchman, William Walker, a member the Brotherhood of Railroad Brakemen, his life. The switchman was making a train, a part of which had been cut off, what is known as a flying switch was made when Walker crossed the track front of the moving part of the train, his foot caught in a frog and he was unable to extricate himself, although making such human efforts. Seeing that he could get himself entirely clear, he took chance of losing his foot in preference to life, but the brake-beams caught him, twisted him so that his leg was caught in the wheels passed over his thigh. Physicians were immediately called and concluded that the leg would have to be amputated near the hip, but decided to remove him to the Las Vegas railroad hospital where the amputation could be performed under the superintendence of the company surgeons. The unfortunate man was moved to Las Vegas. Hedded whilst en route, he died at 2 p.m. It is a general impression that he should not have been removed to Las Vegas, thus entailing a tedious ride, but should it have had the operation performed Albuquerque immediately after accident and thereby giving the injured man a better show for his life. He displayed unequalled fortitude and during the long and dreary hours he laid the stretcher. He was universally esteemed and respected among his fellow employees. Out of respect to his memory the yard-gate is today heavily draped.

Exit Boss Buckley.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—[Special.] Christopher A. Buckley, the famous Democratic politician of this city, left today for Europe. He was accompanied by J. Buckley and his physician, Dr. J. J. Eaton. A large gathering of his political friends accompanied him as far as the land.

Alexander Mitchell's Will.

MILWAUKEE, April 30.—The will of Alexander Mitchell, the millionaire banker, was made public today. No approximate value of the estate is made and the terms will avoid the filing of an inventory that the exact wealth left by Mr. Mitchell will never be known. It is believed to be from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000. The property, real and personal, is to be divided equally between John L. Mitchell, after deducting the following legacies: Mrs. M. Mitchell, widow, $300,000 and homestead valued at $500,000, and $50,000 annuity. David Mitchell, grandson, $100,000; Mrs. J. M. McKie, of Milwaukee, niece, $25,000. Seven bequests to public charitable institutions aggregating $500,000. The property known as the Wisconsin Marine and Insurance Company's bank is divided equally between John L. Mitchell, J. Johnston, his nephew, and David Ferguson, his most intimate friend.

Miners Threaten to Strike.

EVANSTON (Pa.), April 30.—The Miners' Amalgamated Association of the region met here today to consider award of Umpire Jackson and the arbitration board. It was decided to accept the award to date, and make a demand for 12½ per cent. advance in wages, to effect in six days, the alternative to strike. Over 13,000 men are interested.

The Panhandle Thieves.

PITTSBURGH (Pa.), April 30.—Three were found today against 430 of the Panhandle Railroad employees arrested on charge of robbing freight cars. The case will probably come up for trial some time next week.

In Perfect Harmony.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Senator Lamar said today that perfect harmony exists between the President and himself in the Gulf of Mexico homestead

Bismarck's Threats Against Spies in Alsace-Lorraine.

Schneebles Has a Triumphant Entry into France—British Liberal Unionists Meet to Settle the Irish Question, but Break Up in a Row.

By Telegram to The Times.

BERLIN, April 30.—[Copyrighted by the New York Associated Press, 1887.] The Budget Committee of the Reichstag, today, adopted, in the form proposed by the government, the estimates for the construction of barracks and hospitals, also the vote for strategic railways, the vote for increasing the efficiency of the army, and the Loan Bill. When the Reichstag resumes, on Thursday, the committee will present a report approving the whole budget proposals of the government, excepting the artillery grant. Some discussion occurred over the 63,000 marks devoted to rendering the army better prepared to fight, and suggestions were made to reduce the vote of 68,000 marks for strategic railways, but the idea of economy was overruled by the conviction that a collision with France cannot be long postponed; for the release of Schneebles only modifies the position so far as to justify Prince Bismarck's diplomatic position in demanding a cessation of French official excitement to revolt in Alsace-Lorraine, and the stoppage of the organized system of espionage. Germany has good claim to demand that France shall cease from official intriguing in German provinces. It is believed that Prince Bismarck is about to make urgent representations, that, having proved his good-will in the Schneebles case, France must now stop ordering her officials to refrain from fomenting treason in Alsace-Lorraine.

A ROYAL MARRIAGE ARRANGED.

During the visit of the Queen of Saxony to Brussels a marriage was arranged between Prince Boudoin, eldest son of the Count of Flanders, and a nephew of King Leopold, and Princess Mathilde, eldest daughter of Prince George, Duke of Saxony, and niece of King Albert of Saxony, on the 3d of June, when Prince Boudoin attains his majority. King Leopold will proclaim him heir to the throne of Belgium, with the title of Duke of Brabant.

GENERAL NOTES.

Gen. Blumenthal is expected to shortly retire from active service. Although advanced in years, he was considered as the successor of Gen. Von Moltke, but his health has recently become enfeebled. The committee of the Austrian Upper House, after a prolonged debate on a motion made by Herr Schmelling on the use of other languages than German in official documents, has approved the resolution of the Centerists that the use of other languages is not illegal. At the same time the committee recommends that the government maintain German as the language in which all documents relating to the administration and the law courts shall be written.

An art exhibition will be held at Vienna, in 1888, to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of Emperor Francis Joseph's accession to the throne. It is intended to show the development of art in the Austrian domains during the Emperor's reign. A committee of Vienna artists will have charge of the exhibition.

Dr. Waegel, a prominent member of the Reichstag, who was associated with the formation of the German Chamber of Commerce, is dead at Cassel.

SOHNEBELES.

He Reaches France and Receives an Ovation.

PARIS, April 30.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Schneebles, who was released from prison yesterday by order of Germany, and who at once departed from Metz, where he was incarcerated, arrived at midnight at Pagny-sur-Moselle, where he had been arrested. His wife and son met him at the station, where were also assembled the whole population of the town, headed by all the officials of the municipality. Schneebles was cheered by the crowd, who cried out: "Vive la France!" "Vive Schneebles!" After a short stop Schneebles proceeded to Paris. He declined to be interviewed by members of the press. He declared that he had been well treated by the Germans.

The newspapers seem to be well pleased by the manner in which the Schneebles affair has been settled. They pronounced it an honorable settlement. They praise the prudence and fairness displayed by Frourens, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in his conduct of France's side of the case. A majority of the papers draw from the incident the lesson that in future France must double her vigilance in order to avoid surprises of the kind caused by the arrest of Schneebles. According to the Republique Francaise, all the French prefects have been instructed to prevent people in their respective districts from using the occasion of Schneebles's liberation for making anti-German demonstrations.

Schneebles reached Paris this afternoon. He had once called upon Premier Goblet and had an interview with him, in which he reaffirmed the story of his arrest as originally told. It is again asserted that Schneebles will be relieved of his post of commissary at Pagny-sur-Moselle and he will be retired on a pension.

La France is soliciting donations of f.1 each toward the purchase of a diamond cross for M. Schneebles. Eleven members of the Gausch family head the subscription list.

DISGRUNTLED UNIONISTS.

LONDON, April 30.—A meeting of Liberal Unionists, called today to consider certain proposed amendments to the Irish Crimes Act, assembled at the city residence of the Marquis of Hartington. The meeting was very stormy owing to a divergence of opinion among the attendants as to many of the details of the bill. Several of the gentlemen present left the meeting before its conclusion.

SUPPOSED NEGRO THIEVES LYNCHED.

PROCTOR (W. Va.), April 30.—The bodies of three negroes, brothers, named Sylvester, were found hanging to a tree on the roadside, six miles east of here, yesterday. Each body bore a placard, on which was written: "Nigger thieves must be broken up." Farmers in the neighborhood have suffered depredations from the hands of unknown persons, and it seems they finally settled on the Sylvesters as the guilty ones. These negroes lived comparatively comfortably, yet scarcely ever did any work. No arrests have been made.

Session of the Commission at Mobile—Another Road Wants a Suspension—Chicago Merchants on the New Law.

By Telegram to The Times.

MOBILE (Ala.), April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] The Interstate Commission met this morning and devoted three hours to hearing the evidence of those interested in the iron business, and in receiving petitions from firms engaged in the lumber interest, all favoring a suspension of section 4. But one witness appeared in favor of the enforcement of the law as it stands. The commission then adjourned to meet on Monday in New Orleans.

ANOTHER ROAD WANTS A SUSPENSION.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The Oregon Railway and Navigation Company filed a petition with the Interstate Commerce Commission today, praying to be relieved from the operation of section 4 of the Interstate Commerce Act.

VIEW OF CHICAGO MERCHANTS.

CHICAGO, April 30.—The Inter Ocean today prints the results of interviews with the heads of representative wholesale firms of Chicago and of a large number of prominent receivers and shippers of grain and provisions, which develop some interesting information as to the practical operation of the Interstate Commerce Law. The one point upon which all agreed was that freight rates were likely to be permanently higher under the new enactment, and that the consumer of commodities must pay this increase into the treasury of the railroads. Some hold, however, that compensating advantages will be derived from the enforcement of short and long haul and unjust discrimination clause sufficient to more than offset the increase in charges. In many instances, too, the advantage of the freight rates cuts in the price of goods which weigh very little in comparison with their values. Still there is an undesirable advance thus far in the amount of money expended in freight charges by jobbers of these goods. The only outlet to the West that the Pacific coast is practically obliterated under the law. The attitude of the railroads toward the law was almost universally condemned.

A RAILROAD WAR.

Eastern Trunk Lines and Western Roads at Loggerheads.

NEW YORK, April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] The Evening Post says: "The fight between the western and eastern railroad companies about the payment of commissions for the sale of tickets continues in a quiet but dogged sort of way, and the trunk lines yesterday ordered the tickets of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and Hannibal and St. Joe be taken off. That means, if the order is carried out, that no tickets can be bought at any trunk line office to Kansas City or any point in Kansas, Colorado, Mexico or California by way of Kansas City. Passengers will only be able to buy such tickets at the offices of western roads or of their agents. The Chicago and Northwestern is still paying commissions, but their tickets are still kept on sale by the trunk lines. The Pennsylvania this morning issued orders to agents not to sell tickets to Chicago or St. Louis to any representatives of western roads. The western men, of course, will send all strangers by some route other than the Pennsylvania, and they think the latter will be loser by its action. The only outlet to the West that the eastern trunk lines now have is by the Chicago and Northwestern. The western roads are sending passengers by the Ontario and Western, the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Old Dominion Steamship Company.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The Commercial Advertiser says: "The refusal today by the Pennsylvania Railway to sell tickets to accredited agents of the western railways is regarded by the ticket agent, G. C. Lansing, as the beginning of a war for supremacy between the trunk lines and western companies. Mr. Lansing says the Pennsylvania road's action is practically a boycott, and is one of the results of the meeting of general passenger agents in this city yesterday. The Pennsylvania, which always takes the initiative in such matters, will be joined, he thinks, by all the other trunk lines."

FLOOD AND FRESHET.

High Water in the Kennebec and Other Maine Streams.

WATERVILLE (Me.), April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] Rain has been falling for thirty-six hours, and the water in the Kennebec River has risen to a greater height than has been known for fifteen years. Two million logs at the Somerset mills have broken loose and are floating to sea. Many buildings along the river bank are afloat, and the water is still rising at the rate of six inches per hour.

GARDNER (Me.), April 30.—The water in the Ossipee stream has reached the highest point ever known, causing a total suspension of business along its banks.

PETERBORO (N.H.), April 30.—During a heavy shower yesterday afternoon, a waterspout burst on Fairbanks hill, West Peterboro, and caused the most damaging wash-out known here. The water ran down and down in sheets, covering the hills, and upon reaching the streets swept everything before it. Large rocks, weighing two tons, were washed from their beds and left in the streets.

FAIRFIELD (Me.), April 30.—The greatest freshet since 1869 prevails here, and the water is still rising.

Santa Ana Rejoices.

SANTA ANA, April 30.—The location for the junction of the Los Angeles and San Diego branch with the Riverside, Santa Ana and Los Angeles road has been definitely settled at Santa Ana. Graders have completed working in the cañon, and track-laying is being pushed ahead with rapidity. New towns at Buena Park and Burrell Point are being laid out.

CHARLESTON (W. Va.), April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] An official investigation was begun today into the charges made at the close of the session of the Legislature that State Senator Minnear was influenced by a consideration to vote for the reelection of Camden (Dem.) to the United States Senate.

Shelton Roger testified that as a personal friend he had visited Minnear and learned that a letter from the Republican Central Committee had been sent to the Republican members of the Legislature, alleging that Camden was using money to secure reelection. A copy of this letter he offered to Camden and also to United States Collector McGraw for a consideration, but they told him that a copy was useless. He again visited Minnear's home and purloined the original letter, a fac-simile of which was published in the Wheeling papers. The witness further testified that he came here and bargained with three members to vote for Camden in consideration of $5000. The money, he said, was raised by Republicans, whose names he refused to give. The votes were to be cast on a given signal from him at a meeting of the parties furnishing the money, but said that Camden was not one of them.

When asked what he received for the famous letter which was published, the witness said that he received his expenses, and Collector McGraw gave him $30, and later, at Washington, $30 more. Witness said he has spells, after which he is bright, but at other times dull and stupid. He did not know of the $30 given him in Washington until the next day, as it was put in his pocket by McGraw. Camden did not give it to him. McGraw promised him an annual pass over the Baltimore and Ohio, which he has not received.

The commission adjourned until Monday. The witness, Roger, is subject to epileptic fits, and had one after the examination was concluded. His acquaintances allege that his testimony is unreliable.

QUIETED DOWN.

The Louisville Mob Finds the Troops Too Strong.

LOUISVILLE (Ky.), April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] Everything is quiet this morning about the jail and courthouse square. The meeting agreed upon by the mob leaders last evening has not materialized, and it is generally believed that all danger of mob violence has passed. Turner and Patterson passed a miserable night. They refused to eat and could not sleep with any peace. When the prisoners were told that the militia and a galling gun had appeared, they grew quiet and rested under a feeling of safety. The statement published by one of the morning papers indicating that Patterson was able to prove an alibi is not generally believed. It is strongly contrary to another story told by Patterson a few days ago.

LOUISVILLE (Ky.), April 30.—The Jehine Bowman case still absorbs the public mind here. The mob spirit has been exhausted (they are tired of every day's law) upon the alleged alibi of Patterson. An afternoon paper publishes a detailed account of the movements of Patterson upon the day of the crime, with corroborative evidence from several of the witnesses. The paper has had the effect of emphasizing the necessity of leaving the case in the hands of the law.

MUNICIPAL INQUIRY.

The Brooklyn Investigation Beginning to Pan Out.

NEW YORK, April 30.—[By the Associated Press.] The Brooklyn Investigation Committee met here again today. Henry W. Pope resumed his testimony. He said he was not willing to testify before the committee because it would involve personal friends. Edwards and Nevins were two of his friends. When asked if he thought it a crime to use money for bribing public officers, witness said he thought the scheme a public necessity.

Charles Nevins, one of the originators of the electric-light company in Brooklyn, declined to show his bank book, on the ground that it was his private business. He was ordered by the committee to be present at the next meeting, with all books and papers relative to the time covered in question. Nevins admitted having received checks from Pope, Sewell & Co., but said they were in return for loans. He denied the corrupt use of money.

Confidence Men at Vacaville.

VACAVILLE, April 30.—A. C. Hawkins, a wealthy rancher, and an old resident of this locality, was the loser this morning of $500, through the operations of a couple of confidence men. A warrant was sworn out, and this afternoon several arrests were made, and the men taken to Fairfield. They proved not to be the right ones.

BALLONA HARBOR.

THE NEW POINT CANVASED BY A LOS ANGELES SCHIBE.

The First Artificial Harbor Attempted as a Private Enterprise—A Back-handed Luck at San Pedro—A Comprehensive View.

[S. N. Sheridan, Jr., in Overland.]
A very important problem in engineering is just now being worked out in Los Angeles county. This problem is the creation of an artificial harbor at the lake, which is more than half a league, known as La Ballona.

It is true that this problem of the creation of artificial harbors has been solved repeatedly in the countries of the Old World, in times ancient and modern; but the solution has always been made by the State, and never before by individual enterprise. The gentlemen in charge of the project of creating a safe landing for vessels at La Ballona, however, have asked neither for State nor for national aid in the conduct of their work. They have satisfied themselves of the feasibility of the scheme, and have gone to work with seeming earnestness and honesty to demonstrate to others its practicability. Their work has reached a stage at which success seems no longer doubtful, and, perhaps, it is well now to explain to the outside world how Los Angeles, an inland city, is to reap all the benefits of ocean competition.

Artificial harbors, in the first place, are as old as the world of commerce. Tyre and Sidon had their moles jutting out into the sea. Athens had her Piræus, which, though formed originally from a series of small, natural bays, was so improved by the art of Pericles as to be almost an artificial harbor. Carthage had a basin for ships cut in the middle of the city, and even Rome, the mighty mistress of a continent, was not built directly upon the sea. In later days, when her ships drew upon their sails the winds of all the ancient world, it became necessary to create a port for the capital. To come down to more modern days, we have the little lagoons of Belgium and Holland, Liverpool, Cherbourg, all of the Atlantic ports of France, and scores of others in various parts of the Old World, which have either been created wholly, or greatly improved, by the engineering science of mankind.

Harbor improvement is no new thing in America, either, for the matter of that. Millions of dollars have been expended and are annually being expended upon the bettering of the various landing-places upon the Atlantic seaboard of the United States—and if nothing, comparatively speaking, has been done for the accommodation of the commerce of the Pacific, it is for the reason that the needs of the coast were so small, while they were so sufficiently appreciated, have had no influence at the national capital sufficiently powerful to command the attention and compel the consideration of Congress. In all the coast line, six hundred miles, between San Francisco and San Diego, there is not a harbor sufficiently capacious to accommodate the commerce drawn by the fast-developing prosperity of that section of country.

The harbor of San Pedro, however, is a great amount of money and labor, it is true, has been expended in the improvement of the roadstead at San Pedro, and a very little has been accomplished; and the recent wreck of the ship Kennebec at that point would seem to be almost incontrovertible evidence that the work and money have been all but thrown away.

It was reserved for the industrial daring of gentlemen identified with a great corporation to perceive this need of a growing community, and to endeavor to supply it. The Atchison, Topinka and Santa Fe Railroad Company, having Pacific terminal points at Guaymas, San Diego and Los Angeles, with a prospective terminus also at San Francisco, has taken it in hand to give to Los Angeles a harbor which will not only afford a safe anchorage to vessels, but will at the same time give to all the surrounding inland country the immeasurable advantage of competition in ocean transportation.

In looking over the ground for this purpose it was seen that the field for selection was not very large. Aside from the manifest difficulty of securing terminal facilities at San Pedro, where a great rival corporation already occupied the field, it would not be policy to expend money and reap but half the benefit. And again, San Pedro had been tried, and, at least partially, had failed. The company already had San Diego, but that was far away from Los Angeles for the purpose, and a short line between the two places was a contingency of the future. Santa Barbara was too remote also, and here, again, the Southern Pacific occupied the field. It was seen, therefore, that only Santa Monica—forsaken, without a wharf, and until very lately almost without a separate entry—remained; but here, again, another corporation was in the field.

The harbor-projectors, however, were not discouraged. Four miles southwest of Santa Monica, and ten miles southeast of Los Angeles, lying in the shelter of low range of hills rising from the valley toward the sea, is a small, narrow lake at the point where the La Ballona creek debouches into the ocean. It is a true lake, for, although it lies close down upon the beach, it is a well-defined earth formation encircled it, and proves conclusively that its water is not drawn by seepage from the sea. As has been said, the lake is exceedingly narrow. Its length is about a mile, and it varies in width from two hundred to six hundred feet. The water in it varies in depth, in ordinary times, from six inches to twenty feet.

Back of the lake there is a range of drifting sand-hills, the common range of the coast of Southern California; and behind these hills there stretch away for miles the low marsh lands of the Centinella ranch. La Ballona creek flows down through this marsh, which is, after all, only a wash of sediment from the hills and higher plains toward Los Angeles—and in the rainy season the creek breaks through the sand-hills, and the waters overflow the lake and find an outlet into the ocean.

It was at this point, when an eminent English engineer had pronounced the most feasible on the southern coast for the purpose, that the Atchison people proposed to build for themselves a harbor. They neither asked nor expected aid from the Government. That did not seem to be a part of the plan. The idea was simply to create a harbor; and, from the changing of the work already done, it would seem that a harbor will almost assuredly be created.

There was much preliminary work, of course, in the way of soundings and surveys, before the plans of the project were definitely matured. This preliminary work, and the drawing of the plans for the whole project, was entrusted to Mr. McCrae, a Scotchman, and a most competent engineer. Upon this report a company was organized, known as the Ballona Harbor and Improvement Company, with a capital stock of $300,000—every dollar of it subscribed.

The engineer's report developed the fact that, at a distance of 300 feet wide and of sufficient depth to give eighteen feet of water in the lake at low tide—was cut through the 350 feet of sand and earth between the sea and the lake. This was only a beginning, but it allowed for the floating into the lake of the piles and dredgers and heavy timbers necessary for the completion of the work. This result is being approached now as rapidly as money and men will accomplish it.

As has been said, the channel opened into the sea has a maximum width of 200 feet. This channel, when the work is finished, will have upon either side of it a double row of 12x13 inch square piles, securely bolted together. These rows of piling will extend into the roadstead 1000 feet, thus reaching out at once beyond the sand-bank, and one row will be of width and strength sufficient to carry a line of railroad upon it. Ship and rail will thus be brought together at the furthest outer line of the channel.

Around the lake proper, which is now being dredged to a uniform depth, this double row of piles will also extend, making the entire frontage one continuous wharf line. This harbor will be two miles in length, and it will have uniform width of 500 feet. A townsite has been laid out upon the low hills south of the lake, commanding a glorious view of the sea and the Santa Barbara Islands; and a railway is being built to connect with the Atchison system at Los Angeles. The town and the railroad, however, are things of the future. By the first of July the harbor at La Ballona will be a fact accomplished.

Although no danger is apprehended of a wash of sand into the harbor, still a supplementary channel, with flood-gate, will be opened at the upper end of the lake. By a simple mechanical arrangement, this flood-gate needs no elaboration, this will admit of a flow of water into the lake at high tide; but, when the ebb comes, will drive the receding water out through the main channel, with force sufficient to keep it always open.

All has not been told of the harbor of La Ballona, however, when a description has been given of the work that is being done, and that it is proposed yet to be done. The low mud-flat behind the sand-hills, extending back for an indefinite distance toward the plains of Centinella, will be the theater in the future of a far greater undertaking than the present work. Not till the success of the project in hand has been demonstrated beyond all cavil, however, will one step be taken to the end of dredging out this mud and creating what is already called by the harbor company "the inner harbor." Then a passage will be cut through the sand-hills similar to the one now connecting the center of the lake with the sea, and the dredgers will have opened to them a field that is practically limitless. One year of steady work in this flat would excavate a basin, land-locked and perfectly sheltered, which would float the navies of the world.

All the land throughout belongs to the company, but its capital stock would hardly seem adequate to the undertaking of a project of such vast magnitude as this would be. Perhaps, with the outer harbor a harbor of the capital would be readily forthcoming—or, more possibly, the affair is conducted upon the principle of a close corporation. It is certain that at the present time there is no stock of the company in the market.

All the country surrounding La Ballona is highly productive, and the local shipping secured to the harbor will be very large from the first day it is opened to the world. A more important point is the fact that the shortest line which is possible to draw between the two oceans on United States soil is from La Ballona to the Gulf, and that the harbor is 800 miles nearer to Hawaii than the Bay of San Francisco. There are possibilities, it is evident, of Oriental trade—to say nothing of the wool shipment of Australia, and the lesser trade of the islands of the South Pacific.

THE ILLINOISANS.

A Full House and a Highly-Entertained Audience.

Good Templar Hall was crowded to the doors last evening to hear the mock trial, participated in by members of the Illinois Society. President Ralph E. Host sat in state as the presiding judge of the occasion, and J. J. Gosper acted as clerk. James Burdette, assisted by O. H. Violet, represented The People, and C. H. Batchelder and Firman Church appeared for the culprit, Walter Melick, who was to be arraigned at the bar of justice for the heinous crime of chicken-stealing.

The court said that prior to taking up this important case were of use in the trial. He called the following:
People of Pacific Coast vs. the Interstate Commerce Law. Continued ninety days.
People of United States vs. The Liquor Traffic. Indicted for all the crimes in the calendar. Continued.

People of Southern California vs. The Northern Ostrich Belt. Indicted for libel. The District Attorney said that as there had been a heavy snowfall recently in the N. C. B., the case might be dismissed. So ordered.
The court here read a confidential note found on his desk containing $250, and asking that the defendant, Melick, might have a fair trial. It was signed "Justice." The court said that he desired it distinctly understood that this was not a $250 note, etc. So the force went on. The indictment was read, and the defendant in the Supreme Court of North America and South America with stealing, etc., a male spring chicken, to wit, a rooster of the age of three-score years and thirty, etc. Motions of all kinds, discussions and mighty eloquence filled the air for some time. A jury was impaneled, witnesses examined and the defendant acquitted, amidst the continuing laughter of the large audience. It was a roaring farce, and, as such, very successful. Following this came a social and music.

A Strange Runaway.

There was a remarkable runaway at 7:30 last evening. Two broncos attached to a dirt wagon came running down Fifth street from Olive. Arriving at Spring they ran into the big trench being dug for gas-pipes. One horse went clear down into the ditch, his head doubled under him, the other horse on top of him and the wagon on top of him. Every witness expected to see the bottom horse taken out dead, but he wasn't. He was got upon his feet when the incubus was removed, and the dirt being filled into the trench in front of him, was finally led out, sore, but sound.

Special Sermons.

Rev. Mr. Chichester has been requested by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor to deliver some sermons, and he will, beginning Sunday evening, May 1st, and on successive Sunday evenings, preach upon the following subjects: 1. "The Young People's Society." 2. "The Man of Strength." 3. "Amusements." 4. "The Young Convert's Conscience." 5. "Habits." 6. "Character Building." All persons will be cordially welcomed and provided with seats. Services at 7:30 o'clock.

No Fire.

An alarm of fire yesterday morning took two engines and hose-carts galloping up Temple street to Bunker Hill avenue, but when they arrived there with the attendant crowd no fire could be discovered, and the machines returned down the hill. One of the engines came down at a fast rate, for which there seemed to be no necessity, and came near colliding with a wagon on the roadway.

Select Knights.

The second session of the Grand Legion Select Knights, A. O. U. W., of California and Nevada, will meet to-morrow at Opera-house Hall.
Legion No. 6, of this city, has just received an elegant new silk banner.

A GOOD HAUL.

THE POLICE RAID THE TURF CLUB FARGO GAMES.

Add Capture Thirty-three Gamblers, including a Councilman's Son—Three Games and Lots of Sports—A Clever Job.

For some time a gambling game has been in full blast over the Turf Club saloon, on Spring street. The proprietors and habitués have felt very safe from official interference, and well they might, as there were three doors, an ante-room and two watchmen between them and any one who might wish to spoil their game. The police, however, determined to try them, with the result given below. About half-past 9 last evening Officers Frederick Smith, Bosqui, Gus Smith and Auble headed for the place bent on war.

They found the outer door at the foot of the stairs unlocked and no keeper there. They silently ascended the stairs and rapped at the second door. The watchman on the inside slipped the eyelet over aside, and applying his optic, recognized the familiar face of Fred Smith. He hastened to further bar the door, but Smith threw himself forcibly against it, and it burst in with a crash. The men inside attempted to secure the third door, but the officers were too quick for them, and bounded into the inner sanctum, to find between forty and fifty men making a wild break for the front windows and fourth door. The officers rushed to these points of egress, and seeing a temporary halt to the fleeing gamblers. They gathered in their men and the outfits, and escorted all to the police station. Here thirty men were booked for visiting a gambling-house, and three men for being dealers. The outfit of three faro games were captured with "bushels of chips." Six men who promised to go along quietly kept their word so well that they were not among the crowd which got to the station, which would have made thirty-nine men. When they jumped for the front windows one man slid down a pole and escaped. It was a good capture, nevertheless, for the four plucky officers to make. The following list of names was given, each depositing $20 for his appearance, except the last three, who put up $50 each, making $750 in all, for bail:

John Doe Mack, C. A. Dart, James Dannon, W. Burke, Edward Dalton, Charles Brown, Frank Wilson, J. C. Bell, S. B. Ortiz, J. Kelly, F. Hanover, Rom Ramirez, John Smith, J. Kelly, J. Thompson for libel, John Wilkins, Williams, J. Feltey, John Kennedy, C. Boialupi, C. H. Henderson, Sam Johnson, John Howard, Fred McCloud, William Abbott, Bill Jones, Peter O'Neil, A. H. Nobody, C. E. Somebody, H. Halves, A. Stranger, Ed Buckley.

The following are as many of the real names of the gamblers as could be learned last night, beyond the few professionals, who gave their real names: Pete Dornaleche, Cyrus Lyons, Charles W. Stearns and Ralph Dominguez.

"SMOOTHY" AGAIN.

Another Midnight Libel Suit Against "The Times."

At 11:45 last night "Bull" Williams, J. W. McKinley, John Koster and H. H. Boyce marched solemnly up to the courthouse. They had a great big paper to file, and were apparently unaware of the fact—generally known to business people and attorneys—that the County Clerk's office transacts no business after 5 p.m. They tried to get Deputy Clerk Mappa to file their document, but he declined, and they went off, obliged to be content with "filing" their embryo suit with the Herald and Tribune. It was another suit against "The Times" for libel, the article upon which it was founded having been published in yesterday's TIMES.

These persons seem to have a fondness for doing their legal business at the hour chosen by burglars. They went to the courthouse with their first suit Thursday night at 11:30; and, finding no one there but the watchman, proceeded to hunt up Mr. Mappa. Before leaving the courthouse, however, Williams started in behind the counter, expressing his intention to affix the official county seal to his document! Watchman Lynch stopped him short. The gang then went to Mr. Mappa's house, and got him out of bed to make their call before him. They tried to get him to file the papers then, but he declined.

BRIEFS.

John C. Cline, Deputy Sheriff, resigned that position yesterday.

The Queen of the Pacific sails north today, and the Eureka tomorrow.

There will be a concert at the University of Southern California, May 4th.

The Prohibition Club meets tomorrow evening at Justice Taney's court-room.

The Methodist Church of Monrovia held a pleasant entertainment in the town hall last evening.

At 3 o'clock this morning a serious accident was reported at Monrovia, but no particulars could be obtained.

O. H. Bliss reports the rainfall night before last at five one-hundredths of an inch. Total for the season, 15.33.

Three carloads of granite blocks from Victor, for street-paving, are at the stone-yard on North Main street next Alameda.

The attractive South Pasadena Hotel, by George Lightfoot, will be opened with an entertainment and ball next Wednesday evening.

The Pomona and Los Angeles base-ball clubs will play the first game of the Southern California League series, at the Sixth street grounds, at 2 p.m. today.

The clock is being erected on the edge of the side-walk, corner of Spring and Temple streets, contrary to the orders of the Police Commissioners. It will probably have to come down.

The "special afternoon" of the Woman's club yesterday was largely attended and very enjoyable. The exhibition of "muscle-reading," by Clarence B. Mudge, was phenomenally interesting.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to M. Baker and A. Gerken, Chris Souerwine and Ida V. Wise, Joel B. McClure and Mrs. Lorinda B. Thompson, James Stratton and Lucy Conn, and Fernando Louisa and Valdivia Dominguez.

There are telegrams at the Western Union telegraph office, 17 North Main street, for the following persons: Lyman M. Baldwin, Walter R. Dyer, C. E. Henry, Mrs. Mary A. Reed, Jim Brennan, P. Hamilton, H. M. Kebby, Mrs. Lucy H. Stagg and Will H. Weber.

It seems that the woman Biddy McCarty, whose arrest for disorderly conduct was noted the other day, had been dismissed from the service of Mr. Clark and she refused to quit the premises. A policeman was summoned and carried the recalcitrant Biddy away. Mrs. Clark had no words with her discharged servant.

The office of the Times-Mirror Company is removed to the new Times Building, northeast corner of First and Fort streets (first floor)—entrance, for the present, on the Fort street side. Open day and night.

People's Store. We will place on sale Monday in our dress-goods department nine pieces of double-fold dress goods in plain, striped and checked, at 25c a yard. These goods are hand-made, and any we have in the store at any price. Come early for them. We also have a line of 40-inch checks. Cashmere plaids, very neat and pretty. No one can help admiring them. We will sell them for 35c. Never a yard left the house under 40c, and we thought them splendid values at that price. Ottoman silks, all pure silk, in the spring shades, at 90c a yard—goods that are well worth $1.50. Our business has nearly doubled within the last two weeks. There is only one reason: the splendid values we are giving.

In domestic we will have a sale day. Bleached and unbleached muslins, will sell at 15c a yard for $1. These are not our cheap brands. We have bleached muslins 15 yards for $1. Everybody that sees these goods is surprised at the quality. Apron-check and dress gingham, worth 15c, and you pay 10c in every store in town, to be sold at 8c. White corded Swiss effects and India lawn goods that sell elsewhere at 50c, and all the best of the yard. These are Irish importations. We will sell fifty pairs of checked, cross-barred and flowered undergarments, organza and muslin, like a yard, that will astonish you at the price. Fancy colored satens, will sell 12 yards for $1, and Merrimacks that retail all over the United States at 25c, will be 15c.

We have on sale Monday a line of twenty different styles of ladies' full-fashioned and finished hose—in stripes, dots, figures, solids and balbriggans—none worth less than 35c; all to be sold at 25c a pair.

Robt. vane at that lace or embroideries see what the People's Store has.

Ladies' summer vests, 25c.

Ladies' balbrigan vests, silk-bound and silk-stitched, 40c.

The Lewis Bros.' Drawing Last Evening. At 8 o'clock last night Turner Hall was crowded with ticket-holders in the lot advertised to be given away by the firm of Lewis Bros. On Saturday evening, April 30, 1887, at 8 o'clock, Mr. M. Lewis of the firm of Lewis Bros., turned over the duplicate tickets that had been issued, to Messrs. Ottman, Fields and Robson, the committee selected by the audience to supervise the drawing. A little boy was called from the audience, blindfolded, and drew a ticket. The last ticket proved to be No. 885, held by Mr. Jacques Levy, whose occupation is that of a butcher, and his residence Salinas street. Mr. Levy was present, presented his ticket and received his deed. Mr. Levy is to be congratulated on his good fortune. Lewis Bros. will give away a $450 lot during this month, commencing Monday next.

COLD FACTS.

The distance from Los Angeles to San Bernardino is, in round numbers,

Sixty Miles.

It is about thirty miles from Los Angeles to Claremont, and, consequently, you will find that it is about thirty miles from Claremont to San Bernardino.

NOTE—E. O. and E.

Twenty-two adult, robust thirty towns in thirty miles!

Now examine the next thirty miles and observe the appended list:

No. 1. MAGNOLIA

No. 2. Cucamonga

No. 3. Etiwanda

No. 4. San Bernardino

The soil, climate, water supply and general adaptability to horticulture and residence, as well as other conditions relative to the healthy growth of a community or town, are considered by eminent authorities just as favorable in that section, as in the first named; and it is only a question of a short time when the resident population and productive capacity of the one will equal the other, saving, perhaps, the element of a suburban population doing business in Los Angeles.

Now, towns, to thrive, must have some surrounding country to support them, and the more good, fertile land a town has to back it up, other things being equal, the more rapid and prosperous will be its growth.

Perhaps this proposition has not occurred to you in this light before in selecting your field for investment. If it is considered sound, you are invited to apply it to

MAGNOLIA.

And govern yourself accordingly.

Before You Start

On a Journey, call and get a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, as a safeguard against an attack of bowel complaint. Many prudent and careful persons never travel without it. Hundreds of traveling men are never without a bottle of it in their grip. Many lives and much suffering have been saved by its timely use. No one can afford to travel without a bottle of this pleasant, safe and reliable preparation. C. H. Hance, druggist, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

The most painful cases of rheumatism may be relieved by a few applications of Chamberlain's Pain Balm; its continued use will cure any case, no matter of how long standing. The record of this pain-relieving medicine is wonderful. It is equally beneficial for lame back, pain in side, shoulder lameness, and in all painful affections requiring an external remedy. A trial will convince any person that the above statement is correct. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is sold by C. H. Hance, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This has been demonstrated in thousands of cases treated by

DR. M. HILTON WILLIAMS,

No. 275 North Main Street, LOS ANGELES.

With his new system of Medicated Inhalations combined with proper constitutional remedies for the liver, stomach, blood, etc.

Probably no system of practice ever adopted has been so universally successful as that introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

Over 75,000 cases treated during the past 20 years, for some form of head, throat or lung trouble.

The following is a sample of hundreds of flattering testimonials given:

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Sept. 24, 1885.

DR. M. HILTON WILLIAMS:

Dear Sir—I have been contemplating for some time past making a statement of my case and the benefit I have derived from your treatment, remembering I would have been glad to have seen something of the kind from a person in the city to whom I could have referred when I first came to Los Angeles from my home in New York State.

I had been suffering for several years with what various physicians in the East pronounced "chronic ulcerated laryngitis." I spent considerable time at the Clifton Sanatorium, and employed the best medical skill I could find, all without any permanent benefit, and as a last resort our family physician recommended Los Angeles. For a time I improved, and then I began to go backward and all my former symptoms returned.

Through a medical friend I was induced to try your treatment, which I did August 29, 1884. I became very much discouraged at times, but persevered, as I felt almost desperate and knew of nothing else to try. My throat trouble being aggravated by a serious stomach difficulty, made it very obstinate to deal with, but at last, after persevering for a time with your remedies, I consider I am permanently cured. If this will be of any value to you, you are at liberty to use it; also to refer any one to my mother, my husband or myself. Very truly yours,

MRS. J. D. WILEY, 821 Olive st., Los Angeles, Cal.

RIVERSIDE, Oct. 17, 1885.

To the many testimonials sent by Dr. Williams I give me pleasure to add my own to the list so highly in his favor. For nearly two years I have been suffering from throat and lung trouble, brought on by catarrh. Had tried many remedies in the meantime, but found only temporary relief. After two months treatment, prescribed by Dr. Williams, my cough left me altogether, and I now have no pain in my throat or lungs as formerly. I cannot speak too highly of the benefits I have received, and shall ever be grateful to one who is worthy of the highest recommendation.

MISS MINNIE H. HARRIS, Riverside, Cal.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Nov. 20, 1885.

MISS CLARA FOOSHEE, who lives near the Temple-street reservoir, says: "When I began treatment with Dr. M. Hilton Williams, June 14, 1884, the doctors said I was in the second stage of consumption. They also told my relatives that I could not live long. I was very bad at that time, coughing large quantities of pus from my lung, where the cavity existed. As soon as I began treatment with Dr. Williams I began to improve, and in a few months I entirely recovered my health, which has continued permanent in every particular, although it is now over two years since I was treated by him."

By the employment of proper inhalation in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to introduce into the nose and direct action upon the diseased surface in the pharynx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case can be cured.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatsoever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved.

CONSULTATION FREE.

Those who desire to consult with me had better call at my office for consultation and examination, but, if impossible to do so, can write for a copy of my Medical Treatise, containing a list of questions. Address

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

HOW TEN BOYS WENT EXPLORING—PART IX.

The Drunken Sailor—The Captain's Visit to the Crater of Leahi—The Boys Set Out on a Trip to the Peak.

While on shore the boys learned that a steamer would leave the islands for an American port the next day, and that they would have a chance to send letters home. So they returned early to their ship in order to write to their parents. This done, they felt that they might spend two or three days at the islands before setting sail again. They wanted to visit some of the great sugar plantations, the volcano of Mauna Loa, and the leper hospital on the island of Molokai.

The next morning was clear and beautiful. The air was soft and warm. Native men in their gay shirts and bright trousers were moving upon the streets. Native women were out in calico dresses, which hung loosely from their shoulders, and all the city had waked to busy life when they went ashore. They wandered about for some time through the tree-shaded streets. They were greatly interested in the native houses, standing in the shade of orange and palm trees.

But they did not linger very long in the city. They were anxious to get out among the hills and mountains, and to learn all that they could about the country.

"People that are heathenish enough to dress as these Kanaks do don't interest me much," said Tom, as he looked at the women in their Mother Hubbard-like dresses, and the men in their gay shirts and trousers.

"They are all well enough," said George, "and not so very much like heathens as you seem to think."

"Well, we'll find out more about them by and by. But for one I should like to try my land legs again on the green hills over yonder," replied Tom.

"All right, then," chorused the boys. "To the hills it is. Where shall we go?"

"I heard the Captain say this morning that one of the most interesting points that we could visit is the pali or precipice of Nuuanu, just about six miles away. You have heard of Queen Emma, who died a few years ago. Well, she had a palace out in the Nuuanu Valley and some of the most beautiful gardens that there are in the whole islands," answered Tom.

So the boys set out for the pali and the palace gardens. They enjoyed the walk, for a breeze blew in from the sea which tempered the heat, and portions of the way were shaded. They stopped every now and then to look at the grass-thatched huts along their path, and once they accepted the invitation of a friendly native, and sat for a little while with him under the shade of a palm tree to eat some of his sour fruit, and drink a little beer. But they did not relish either of these very much—not as well as they would have done a hard sea-biscuit and a drink of cool water.

They found the gardens very beautiful with tropical flowers and plants, but the Queen's palace looked very plain to them—not half as grand as some of the homes that we find here in Los Angeles. But the pretty gardens made them almost forget its plainness as they wandered down their flowery paths and listened to the music of the fountains.

They took their lunch in the shade of a splendid banana grove, and one of the gardeners gave them a bunch of its fine fruit.

Setting out again, in a little while they reached the summit of the volcanic ridge which divides the island into two parts. They went through a deep narrow gorge or cañon, and came out upon the brink of the precipice. It was a sight that they all enjoyed. They were 1100 feet above the plain. Great mountain cliffs were on each side of them, the tops of which were at least 1800 feet above where they stood. A way off to one side was the ocean, as blue as the sky over their heads. Then they could see, not so very far away, the old dead craters that years before had belched out fire and smoke and streams of burning lava. But they were not and smokeless as the boys viewed them, and were covered with yellow sands. Not a bit of grass, nor a shrub nor a tree grew on them; they were a picture of desolation.

The boys turned from them with glad eyes, and looked away in the direction of an immense sugar plantation. The tall stalks of the cane stretched up like flagstaffs, and their long, slender leaves looked like green banners. They could see them glisten in the sun, and the fields stretched for miles away, and were very beautiful indeed.

Fronting where they stood was the small hamlet of Kaneohe, and farther away was a range of dark-blue mountains.

"Well, now, if this ain't a picture!" exclaimed Harry Wells.

"Looks a good deal like Southern California, don't you see that the trees are almost the same?" said Joe.

"But let's set out for the ship. We shall not have more than time enough to get back by dark."

"I move that we go back by the path that runs down the face of the cliff," said Tom. "Old sailors like us ought to make it without difficulty."

So they set out down the steep road that had been made for pack-horses only a few years before. Now and then they noticed the small niches that had been cut in the cliff, just large enough to afford a resting-place for the feet, and saw still hanging portions of the iron rod, which still remained fastened to the face of the great cliff. This was the path up which the natives used to climb to the summit before the road was built, but it made even our steady-headed boys dizzy to look at, it was so steep.

On their way back they met Capt. Johns, who had been with a friend to visit the coast crater of Leahi.

"I should have been pleased to have had you along with me, boys," said the Captain. "It was a trip worth making."

"What is there to see?" I'd like to look a real genuine crater right in the mouth," said Fred.

"If you climb to the summit of Diamond Head you could do it," replied

Capt. Johns. "The walls of the Head are rugged and steep, and I crossed many a lava bed that was once a rolling river of fire. The crater's bed was 200 feet below the rim where I stood. But instead of the fiery floods of lava that filled it years ago, there is now a pond of clear water, surrounded by green grasses. Cattle feed here on the rich herbage."

"What's the size of the crater?" inquired Tom.

"It is at least two-thirds of a mile in diameter."

"And you think it used to be an active volcano, Captain?"

"Not a doubt of it, for there are great masses of volcanic rock, and huge boulders that have evidently been thrown from it."

They all went on together toward the city, and a little before sundown they entered the narrow streets of the suburbs. Here they saw a drunken sailor who had come in from one of the sugar plantations. He was riding a mule and was striving hard to drive him through a wall. Soon the mule became fractious, and with a sudden start threw his drunken rider over his head right into the midst of a long line of passing drays. The sailor was too drunk to be hurt by the fall, but one of the carts passed over his legs before it could be stopped.

[To be Continued.]

Would We Return?

Would we return? If once the gates which close upon the past were opened wide for us, and if the dear remembered pathway stretched before us clear.

To lead us back to youth's lost land at last, Whereon life's April shadows, lightly cast, Recalled the old sweet days of childish fear, With all their faded hopes, and brought near The far-off streams in which our aches were eased.

Did these lost dreams which wake the soul's dead yearning But live once more and wait our returning, Would we return?

Would we return? If love's enchantment held the heart no more And we had come to count the wild sweet pain The fond distress, the lavish tears—but vain Had cooled the heart's hot wounds amidst the roar Of mountain gales, or, on some alien shore Worn out the soul's long anguish and had slain

At last the dragon of despair—if then the train Of vanished years came back and, as of yore, The same voice called, and with soft eyes beguiling Our lost love beckoned, through time's gray veil smiling, Would we return?

Would we return? Once we had crossed to death's unlovely land And trod the bloomless ways among the dead, Lone and unhappy after years had fled With twilight wings along the glimmering strand, If then an angel came with outstretched hand To lead us back, and we recalled in dread How soon the tears that once for us are shed May flow for others—how, like words in sand, Our memory fades away—how oft our waking Might vex the living with the dead heart's breaking.

Would we return? Would we return? (Robert Burns Wilson in the Century.)

Saved from a Tiger's Jaw. (London Court Journal.)

Only a few months ago, in India, in a certain planting district, there was a notorious man-eater. Two gentlemen, A and B, residing together on an estate, had lost, besides other employees, two chowkies, or native watchmen, within a few days, and the unfortunate men had actually been carried off out of the veranda of the bungalow. A and B, therefore, determined to clothe themselves like natives, and sit during the night, armed, in the veranda, in the hopes they might be able to get a shot at the man-eater, who, they thought, might probably return to the spot which had already provided him with two victims. They proceeded to carry out this intention, and sat up till about 2 or 3 o'clock a.m., but nothing appeared. A then said he should not stay up any longer, as he did not believe the animal would come; but B announced his intention of waiting half an hour longer by himself. There were large windows opening down to the floor of the veranda, and through one of these A retired, and after entering his room had just closed the window, and was gazing out for an instant, when he saw a dark mass land in the veranda, right onto his friend, then heard sounds of a scuffle and a cry for help. Seizing his rifle, to which a sword-bayonet was attached, and flinging up the window, he rushed out, in time to see B walking down the steps that lead to the veranda alongside of the tiger, with his hand in the latter's mouth. "Was afraid I should lose him," he said, "and, running after him, with admirable presence of mind, went up to the tiger, and, plunging the bayonet into the animal's body, at the same instant fired. There was a roar and a scuffle, and B took advantage of the moment to release his hand, and the tiger, after tumbling, died. B's hand was terribly mangled."

Wisdom Behind the Counter. (Philadelphia Press.)

"Some one told me that a smile would go a long way toward helping me become a successful saleswoman," said a girl to whom store life was yet new. "and I have smiled and smiled until I don't think I could look solemn at the funeral of my best friend."

I actually grin from morning till night, and I think I will have to give my mouth a rest, if I don't sell a dollar's worth of the day. I came here with the determination of being good-natured and pleasant to every one, no matter how cranky a customer I might have, but, really, it is harder work than I thought. Still, I am sure good nature pays, and I don't know of any position that requires more patience than that of a saleswoman. A rather stupid girl with a sweet, even disposition is more apt to succeed than a brighter girl who is quick-tempered. I mean to earn $300 a week some day, if I wear out my mouth smiling. I try to be so pleasant to my customers that they won't let any one else wait on them, but ask me to take them to other counters. Then when I get a good trade, my salary will be raised and I will receive considerable extra as percentage. Yes, a bright, good-natured girl is pretty apt to have her salary increased in time and need she has a home and will not be required to pay board while she is gaining her experience. In this store $7 and $8 a week is the average salary."

There has been a general fall of rain throughout Colorado, where it was greatly needed. The farmers have been ready for spring plowing for some time, but have been unable to begin work on account of the dry condition of the earth.

OUR PUZZLE CORNER.

I.—CHARADE.
My first the boys with great delight
In winter time behold
And of it quickly second make,
Regardless of the cold.

But ah! my whole could not endure
Fierce winter's chilling breath;
He'd freeze its crown, and turn it brown,
And that would just be death.

In genial May's bright, balmy time,
Whole spreads itself in pride;
Or, in the winter, molded hard,
At passing heels 'tis shied. S. E. D.

COMING TO CALIFORNIA.

The Beginning of a Regular Annual Excursion Index.

General Passenger Agent Goodman, of the Southern Pacific Company, states in an interview with the San Francisco Bulletin, in reference to the many excursions that have come to this coast during this winter season that is about past, that he had no doubt that this was the beginning of the regular annual excursion influx.

People are becoming more and more to the fact that there is something here to come to, and they begin to realize it. There will be a falling off during the summer, naturally. Our contract with the Raymond and Whitcomb people expires June 1st, but there are many others besides them who are interested in the excursion system. All have the same rates as the Raymond. The new law cannot interfere with excursions—that was especially considered in section 23 of the Interstate Commerce Act. In this month we have notice of ten excursions coming this way. There will be two by the Union Pacific, leaving Kansas City on the 6th and 20th inst.; two by the Burlington line, leaving the same point on the 7th and 21st inst.; two by the Missouri Pacific from St. Louis and Kansas City, on the 6th and 20th; one leaving Kansas City on the 26th by the Atchafalaya and Santa Fe, and three by the Sunset route, leaving New Orleans on the 7th, 14th and 21st. There are also two Raymond excursions during May, leaving Kansas City on the 3d and 10th of that month.

A Psalm of Life.

Through the wild babel of our fever'd time
The song of Homer cometh, grave and stern,
With tidings from the world's fresh, healthy prime.

Tidings which our worn, wearied age concern.
Unchanged, through all the long unnumbered years,
The voice of Homer sings the song divine,
Which tells of godlike toils, of heroes' tears,
And of the punishment of Priam's line.

The battle in the plain is raging yet,
The watchfires blaze, the beak'd ships line the shore;
For the foe in grim array is set—
Ah! but do we fight as they fought of yore?

For we, too, like the heroes long ago,
Must wage slow wars and sail the bitter sea;
Fierce is the conflict, loud the trumpets blow,
And the waves roar and rage unceasingly.

Still must we wander o'er the stormy main;
Twixt rocks and whirlpools a dead passage make;
Still must the sirens sing to us in vain;
Still from the toils of Circe must we break.

Turn, then, to Homer's Psalm of Life, and see
How they endured whose pilgrimage is done;
And hear the message they have left for thee.
Only by patience is the victory won.

—[Macmillan's Magazine.]

Royalty to Royalty.

[San Francisco Post.]
Although the royal race of Fogarty has long been off the throne, there was something so regal in the bearing of our deputy surveyor today, as he pulled his forelock and scraped the deck of the Australia, that Queen Kapilani must have felt a kindred thrill as she gazed upon his magnificent form.

A Concerted Plan.

[San Diego Sun.]
The fact is there appears to have been a pretty general agreement—although it may never have been expressed even among railroad managers—to make this Interstate Commerce law intensely odious by arbitrary enforcement. Whether the scheme will work or not remains to be seen.

HYDE PARK!

Look where you will in the vicinity of the city of Los Angeles, in search either of lots or acre property, for charming homes, and the best judgments will be convinced at a glance as to the difficulty of finding a location for a town so beautiful, such pure and bracing air, and smooth rich lands as characterizes Hyde Park. This splendid townsite is located on the line of the California Central, of the A. T. & S. P. system, which is to connect Los Angeles with the new harbor at La Balleina, and is distant 7½ miles from the center of the city; a midway town between the city and the harbor. Trains are to be running through the tract by July next, when great business activity all along the line will be the order of the day. Liberal-sized lots, 20x150 feet, fronting on sixty-foot avenues, are offered and being taken rapidly at $100 each; $40 cash, balance $10 per month, without interest. Such terms give the present purchasers a good opportunity to make money in the rising values that must follow the effects of the harbor and railroad developments. Particularly desirable are the 5 and 10 acre villa lots surrounding the town. Conveyances leave the office at 1:30 p.m., to show parties the beautiful property.

WOMAN AND HOME.

HABITS OF OBSERVATION ESSENTIAL.

The Blessing of a Wise Mother—What Constitutes a Broad Life—The Influence of the World About Us—Look Up!

Ruskin spoke the truth when he said that numberless people go through the world who "never look up." All the wonders of the universe they lose sight of. The starry heavens; the changing clouds; the glory and the wondrous charms of the golden sunrise and the glowing sunset they never see. The blossoming world about them has no particular charms for them. Tree, nor leaf, nor flower, nor the majesty of mountains they never consider. They are plodders, thinking perhaps of society, enjoying fashionable life, and ambitious for costly raiment and elegant homes, but having no eye for the beautiful in the world about them. I was riding not long ago with an acquaintance, a woman of wealth and of large opportunities, but one whose mental perceptions were largely lying dormant. On one hand of us were the mountains; upon the other the sea. An infinite variety of wild flowers were by the wayside. Morning-glories thrust up their tendrils among the green boughs of the pepper trees and filled them with their blossoms. Purple and yellow starlike flowers grew by the wayside, and over the mountain-tops were some of the grandest cloud effects that I ever beheld.

"Mrs. Blanche," I exclaimed, full of admiring enthusiasm, "do look at those clouds; they are wonderful!" "Yes," she responded, indifferently, only half-turning her head to glance at them. And then she proceeded without a pause to discuss Mrs. So and So's "style," and the faults in the fit of her last new silk, giving not even another glance at the beauty about her.

Mothers, you can do much in the way of educating your children to see. Go out often with them into the country, or the more quiet ways of the city. Direct their attention to the infinite variety in the color and form of different plants and flowers. Call their attention to the wonders in the world about them. Teach them to see, and not let them grope as one who is blind. Lift up their eyes to the starlit heavens; to the wandering clouds; to the sunrise and sunset painted in such glowing colors on their sky-wrought canvases.

They will lose much of the richness of life, much of its overflowing fullness of beauty and delight if their powers of observation are not cultivated. That life is very meager, very barren, that is wrapped up in its own individuality. That life is broad to an almost infinite fullness that takes in the universe about it.

This habit of observation is largely a matter of education, and the earlier the child is taught to observe, the larger and more active will become its power of perception. Blest is that child who has a wise mother, one capable of training it aright in the use of all its faculties. A mother to whom the universe is an open volume, and who is able to interpret its pages for her children. I pity the child whose parents are like the man with the muck rake in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," whose eyes never looked away from the rubbish beneath his feet.

NOTES.
A combination of three specifics—exercise, abstinence and fresh air—will cure the most obstinate cold.—[Dr. Oswald.]

However elegant the home and ample the income, the mistress should know by experience and practice how to manage it.

If the boys' shoes are stiff from having been wet, rub them at night with a little castor oil. This will soften them and make them comfortable again.—[New York Post.]

If roses are wilted before they can be placed in water, immerse the ends of the stalks in very hot water for a minute or two, and they will retain their pristine freshness.

A little bag of mustard laid on the top of the pickle-jar prevents the vinegar from becoming moldy if the pickles have been put up in vinegar that has not been boiled.—[Record.]

To produce a good gloss on linen, pour a pint of boiling water upon two ounces of gum arabic; cover it and let it stand over night. A teaspoonful of this is added to the starch.—[National Farmer.]

To Clean Kettles.—Take a tin fruit-knife and rub vigorously, until the worst is scraped off. Then throw in a tablespoonful of coarse salt and rub with your dishcloth. You will be surprised at the result.

A new material for knitting or crocheting afghans is flacon, a heavy soft wool cloth, which works up rapidly, and is much handier than the old-time worsted. It is especially pretty for baby afghans, when delicate tints are used.—[Home Companion.]

Milk may be canned just as you would can fruit. Bring the milk to the boiling point and fill your jars to the brim with it; then shut air-tight. This will keep any length of time and be just as good when opened as when it was put up.—[Country Gentleman.]

To Make Baking Powder.—Take six ounces Tartaric acid, half pound bicarbonate of soda, three ounces salt and three of sugar; mix and keep it in a bottle, or anything that will keep it air-tight. Have not used any other for years.—[Mrs. A. Haigh in Good Cheer.]

If any of our readers suffer from toothache or neuralgic affections arising from teeth in any state of decay, they may experience relief instantaneously by saturating a small bit of clean cotton with a strong solution of ammonia, and apply it immediately to the affected tooth.—[National Stockman.]

Few persons know how to clean cut-glass properly, and it soon becomes dull-looking. It should be rubbed with a damp sponge dipped in whiting; brush this off with a clean brush, and wash the piece in cold water. You will find, if thus cared for, that it will retain all its prismatic beauty.—[Philadelphia Record.]

Fruit Snaps.—One and one-half cups of sugar, one cup butter, one-half cup of molasses, three eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, one cup of raisins, two cups of currants, one tablespoonful of ginger, one of cloves, one of cinnamon and one of all-spice; mix as soft as can be rolled. These will keep quite a while.—[The Queen.]

SUSAN SUNSHINE.

Santa Barbara—Then and Now.

[Written for the Santa Barbara Press.]
Long years ago, warm nestled in the arms of hills encircling, and lying calm and still within the lap of sunshine. Wearing jewels fair, of wild sweet blossoms. And the dewdrops hid in tilting grasses. With fragrant breath of lily and of rose. With the air wild perfume, and the voice of birds pouring melodious song o'er the bright length of valleys and in the tree-topped cañons, where leaping waterfalls

In harmonious symphony, with a blue bright sky above her like a caper dome, lay dreaming Santa Barbara. His red-tiled roof dwelt the seafarers and dark-browed Spanish don, and seafarers with their midnight eyes shining like starry dusk. The fiery bronco sped across the plain, bearing his rider with sombrero crowned, with the airy spur upon his booted heel, with which he woke the untamed fury of his steed, until he flashed like lightning down his way, yet answered ever the steady hand upon his bridle-rein.

The great world then was far away. Its noisy traffic, its tumultuous life, its giddy whirl of pleasure, and its cruel avails. Stirred not this quiet land. Here, 'neath these oaks.

That, for long centuries, the sun had nursed, and the light breezes kissed, might slip Van Winkle in his dreamless slumber slept, and Waked and found no change. Above him, while the world was changing, his life and his. Still, might have watched the Mission walls, and their breasting chimneys have been his soothing lullaby. The growing vines, mayhap their interlacing tendrils would have woven into a cool Above him, and the squirrel reared his little mound, a soft, fresh earth-pillow for his head. But noise of builder's hammer would have disturbed him not, nor any human hand, of change. The skies would shine above him.

Sunlighted through the day, starlit by night. While still he breathed unconscious peace. The walls adobe, gray and old, were built for the centuries, and the glad children of the sun who dwelt within them were full of sweet content. The noisy wheel Progress rumbled not for them. To sit within the sunshine's golden flood, and bathe themselves in its warm splendor; to watch Hills with changing glory crowned, and see afar.

Their grazing herds, or in the warm-browed noon. To steal in wide veranda's shade the cool Seclusion, to watch the ocean's blue. In the plaza's space, or fling the sure Riata when many sports were rife, and Then to roam at some holy site. Within the Mission's walls, and traffic none. A year or so with the merchant ships touching These shores, this was enough for them. This wealth.

Of sunshine, and this fragrant air, these lordly Acres, all untroubled by foot of alien Interloper, was all they cared for, while Marching empire halted at their gates, nor sought for entrance.

But the years since then have Brought swift changes, and Santa Barbara Lies today like a rich jewel in the sun. The Hand of change has polished her and set her In the golden rim of progress. Her sunlit as in olden days. Green are Her hills as when by Spaniard trod. As full Of perfume all her rose-strewn ways. Richer her fruits that ripen in the sun. Fairer the homes among her gardens set. The world has touched her, o'er her threshold Life thrills through all her veins, and hand in hand. She'll walk with Change, while happy homes Grow on her breast like flowers.

THE ARRLINGTON, SANTA BARBARA, APRIL 12th.

THE BOSS SCHEME.

Turning a Volcano Into an Iron Factory.

There have been schemes and schemes, but the following, as detailed by the Denver News, takes the cake:

Martin Welsh, of the Markham, has just returned home, after three months in California and the Sandwich Islands. He comes back laden with stories of the famous islands, which he visited by special invitation of King Kalakaua. Martin was entertained in the royal palace, at Honolulu, several days; and, at the close of his visit in this somewhat famous city, together with the King, in his private yacht, he visited the molten lake of Mauna Loa. On the very day of their landing, and, as Martin thinks, in honor of himself and the King, the great crater went into convulsions, throwing streams of burning, seething metal from twenty vent-holes hundreds of feet into the air. Martin, while looking upon this weird spectacle, told the King that he then and there conceived an idea which would make them both rich beyond their wildest dreams, and then went on, and to the utter astonishment of the dusky King, made him an open proposition to purchase the lake, which he said he would utilize by means of a scheme of his own for the manufacture of railroad iron. A price was fixed by the King for the sale of the hot molten monster, a large payment made to blind the bargain, and now Martin is in Denver for the purpose of getting up a stock company to carry out his very novel plan and scheme. Mr. Welsh told the Gossip man last night that it is his intention, when full title to the lake has been secured, to run a ten-foot tunnel from sea-level until he taps the bubbling monster. This done, and before he lets in the flow of metal, he will receive all the necessary machinery and casting boxes for turning out railroad iron. He says he can easily make from fifty to sixty carloads per day, and he is satisfied that the character of the metal in this lake, made into rails, will surpass in durability any other rails in the world. Martin says that rails made by the present slow process cost about $20 each, whereas by this novel scheme of utilizing this molten lake he will be able to turn them out for as many cents. When King Kalakaua became convinced of the entire feasibility of the scheme, and after Martin had made a part payment on the lake, he offered Martin $200,000 to be released from the bargain he had closed, but he refused. Mr. Welsh says that Queen Kapolei is a lady of most remarkable beauty, both in face and form, and as jolly and chatty as a New England milk-maid. Martin will return to Honolulu as soon as he can complete the formation of his company.

A Chance Meeting.

Upon the street we met by chance
He and I—face to face;
Each gave the other a savage glance,
And each felt out of place.

Such meetings have their share of pain,
And ours was painful, too.
Each faced the other, that was plain,
And still we nearer drew.

Poor victims we of ruthless Fate!
Fate's victims we are still,
For once I cut him out with Kate,
And he owes me a bill!

A Land of Steel.

[New York Herald.]

We have long thought of California as a land of gold, but never till now have we thought of it as a land of steel. The agents of the Navy Department say, however, that the specimens of the steel made there for the cruiser Charleston compare favorably with the best that is manufactured. Who would have thought in '49 of a steel navy being built within gunshot of the Golden Gate.

The Illinois Club of Chicago has the largest table ever made from a single plank. It is fifteen feet long and six feet wide, and was cut from a California redwood tree.

TWO FRIENDS MEET.

"Hello! old fellow. What have you been doing to yourself? You look like a subject for the undertaker," exclaimed the man on the right.

"I have been taking mercury and potash mixtures until they have nearly ruined me," squeezed the old man on crutches.

"And I," said the other, "have been taking the same old St. John's Special, which has built me up from the first dose."

Nature's own remedy, made from roots gathered from the forests of Georgia. The method by which it is made was obtained by a half-breed from the Creek Indians, who inhabited a certain portion of Georgia, which was communicated to one of the early settlers, and this formula has been handed down to the present day. The demand has been increasing until a $100,000 laboratory is now necessary to supply the trade. A foreign demand has been created, and enlarged facilities will be necessary to meet it. This great
